

TF's old firehouse comes down piece by piece

Jaycees abandon firehouse plans

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The old Twin Falls firehouse is being torn down to make way for a parking lot after the Twin Falls Jaycees abandoned plans to save it.

Preservation of the vacant station on Second Avenue South as a historical monument and community center would be too costly, according to Mike Hagen, Jaycee president. City crews began dismantling the firehouse in June, but the demolition was halted after the Jaycees appealed for time to investigate the possibility of saving it. The city council gave the organization until Aug. 1 to complete its study and submit recommendations.

The deadline passed without word from the Jaycees, according to City Manager Jean Milar, and demolition of the firehouse was resumed.

A survey determined that the building would require about $70,000 in repairs before it could be safely occupied, Hagen said Tuesday. "We were hoping to save it but, realistically looking at it, there would be no way it could be done," he told the Times-News.

Hagen couldn't explain why the city had not been informed of his group's decision not to pursue the preservation plan.

Striking SF cops defy ultimatum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Striking police today defied a back-to-work ultimatum from Mayor Joseph L. Alioto who ordered them fired.

The supervising captain of police said it may be necessary to call out the national guard to keep order.

In a threatened worsening of the municipal crisis, firemen set a strike deadline for 6 p.m. today if their wage demands are not met.

The most spectacular crime since the start of the police walkout occurred early today when a small bomb exploded outside Alioto's home. No one was injured.

With the passage of an 8 a.m. deadline set by the mayor for the officers to return to their stations or face dismissal, pickets continued to walk in front of police stations. The mayor's office

Burning probed

TWIN FALLS — City police here were investigating mysterious circumstances which left a burn victim in critical condition this morning.

Officers were called by Magic Valley Ambulance Service after ambulance attendants picked up a man from a room at a motel here. He reportedly suffered severe burns about the body from an undetermined cause.

Police said the man was sitting on a bed in the motel room when ambulance attendants arrived. There was no fire in the motel, officers said.

The man was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment. His name was not released pending location of relatives.

Sheriff asks 'jamboree' beer license turndown

HOLLISTER — The Twin Falls County sheriff has asked that no beer license be issued to promoters of a country music "jamboree" expected to draw between 3,000 and 5,000 persons Aug. 31.

According to promoter Pat McCurdy, Boise, "The goal is to raise money for local musicians and have a good time."

The promoting firm, Snake River Music Co., has leased 400 acres for the day's festivities from the owner of Nat-Soo-Pah, a private recreational center about 15 miles south of Twin Falls and 3 miles east of Hollister.

Since the event will last less than 18 hours, it does not require a permit under the county ordinance governing large gatherings, according to county commission chairman Merl Leonard. A new, stricter ordinance is being drafted which will cover such assemblies; but there is "no way" it can become law prior to the event near Hollister, Leonard said Tuesday.

However, Paul Corder, Twin Falls County Sheriff, has recommended that a beer-selling permit not be granted for the jamboree if the promoters apply for one. Leonard said the commission probably will follow Corder's recommendation.

Both Corder and Leonard said they have received telephone inquiries about the possibility of getting a beer permit.

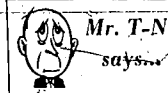

Corder said the jamboree is "really too close to the fair for security." He plans to place some security personnel "around the perimeter" of the jamboree property, but the issuance of a beer permit would require posting more officers both inside and outside the site.

Corder said his manpower would be spread too thin between the fair and the jamboree if a beer permit is granted. "If it was any other time, it wouldn't create the problem," Corder added.

Officials from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the South Central Health District have inspected the jamboree site, according to Corder. The BLM is concerned about federal land adjacent to the property that is "dry as a powderhouse," he said.

"All this country will burn" if a blaze is started, the sheriff said.

A health district spokesman said his agency will assure that promoters of the event provide sanitary services, including drinking water and food.

Henry's latest camel ride may be a rough one.

Nixon sets 'review,' 'Gate tape release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says he intends to make his Watergate tapes and documents public at a later date, but only after they are first "reviewed" by him and his family.

In a 171 page deposition made public today by columnist Jack Anderson, Nixon said he felt no need to release immediately additional information about the scandal that drove him from office. He said he would decide the time table for making the material public.

Nixon said his only current concern was cooperating with the special Watergate prosecutors.

"Then I shall determine, but not the Congress, what can appropriately be made public," Nixon said. "The President should have a right to make a determination as to whether or not and how and when there should be a disclosure."

The lengthy deposition was taken at San Clemente July 25 by a battery of lawyers as part of a suit filed by Nixon to get custody of his tapes and presidential papers. The material is now in government custody.

The deposition was filed in U.S. District Court here several hours after Anderson released the text.

"I intend to provide for making first, of course, for proper review of the tapes, which can only be undertaken by me and members of my family because of the private and personal considerations that are there and for making them public as soon as those reviews are completed," Nixon said.

"Do you expect it to be longer than five years?" a lawyer asked him.

"I can't tell you until I see how big the task is," Nixon replied.

Sinai pact foes protest

By United Press International

Right-wing demonstrators chanting "traitor! traitor!" and "resign!" converged on the home of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin today in protest against a new Israeli-Egyptian Sinai pact and the arrival in Israel of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The demonstration by more than 400 persons, most of them young, marked the biggest anti-Kissinger drive in Israel since the beginning of his Middle East shuttle diplomacy shortly after the 1973 October war.

Earlier today the military command in Tel Aviv said its forces killed three Arab guerrillas who crossed from Lebanon bent on attacking a frontier settlement in a death squad strike apparently timed to coincide with Kissinger's scheduled arrival in Israel Thursday.

Israeli soldiers suffered one casualty in the brief clash outside the frontier settlement of Winita; the command said. It said the guerrillas belonged to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The demonstrators of the Gush Imunim (Loyalist Bloc) and Women for a Secure Israel converged on Rabin's home in Jerusalem and later moved to Paris Square a block away where two dozen persons lay in the road, blocking traffic.

The protesters were demonstrating against the Rabin government for agreeing to a pact with Egypt based on a second Israeli withdrawal from strategic territory in the Sinai without a mandate from the people. They called for Rabin's resignation and new elections.

The demonstrators aimed at Kissinger as well, demanding an end to U.S. pressure on Israel for an agreement and charging that the use of American civilian technicians in Sinai as part of the pact will lead to another South Vietnam.

"We don't feel our friendship with America is going to remain intact with such an arrangement," said Mrs. Joan Levi, formerly of Detroit, Mich.

"We are protesting our own government's giving in to pressures the American government has been putting on them for the ego trip that Kissinger and Ford are on," she said. "We are not anxious for Mr. Kissinger to come. He is not a saviour of the Jews."

Vehicles bedecked with anti-Kissinger signs in English and Hebrew blocked Paris Square, a major intersection. One said, "Mr. Kissinger, We Don't Want You Here."

Border police reinforced more than two dozen policemen already in the Square and some of them hauled demonstrators into waiting navy blue police vans. Police brought a water cannon into the square.

More than 200 demonstrators first went to Rabin's home where they were held back by navy blue iron police barricades and two dozen police. Apparently frustrated, they moved off to the square. Rabin was not home.

Yitzhak Navon, chairman of Israel's Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee, described the new accord Tuesday in a national television interview from Tel Aviv.

Navon said the agreement includes a nonbelligerency clause in which Israel and Egypt would reject the use of force in settling the Middle East conflict.

He said the two countries agreed "not to employ force and not to threaten the use of force against each other and to settle all differences between them by negotiations and by other peaceful means."

Navon did not disclose the final Israeli and Egyptian lines in the Sinai or whether American civilian technicians would man electronic stations at the Mitla and Gidi passes.

He said 20 clauses in the agreement must still be kept secret. The agreement would be composed of three parts: a pact between Israel and Egypt, an accord between Israel and the United States and one by both sides with the United States.

Czech jetliner crash takes 125 lives

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — A Czechoslovakian Airlines jetliner carrying 128 passengers and crew crashed in a desert outside Damascus early today killing 125 persons, a government spokesman announced.

A woman and two children, all Syrians, were the only survivors among the 117 Arab, Czech and Iranian passengers and 11 crew members.

The overnight flight was enroute from Prague to Damascus. From there, it was scheduled to fly to Baghdad, Iraq and Tehran, Iran.

Students battle on Bangkok campus

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thousands of rampaging technical school students battled university students today in the second day of nationwide disorders but the government said it would delay imposing a state of emergency.

The technical students hijacked a bus and smashed through the locked gates of the Thammasat University campus where they traded gunfire with rival students and set fire to the law school building.

Two employees of an American television network were admitted to the hospital with cuts and bruises after being attacked by club-wielding students.

Portuguese Reds give Carvalho backing

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Mounting political setbacks forced the Communists today to agree to join a demonstration in Lisbon tonight in support of military secretary chief Gen. Otelo Salazar de Carvalho, a man they have opposed in the past and a man who has opposed them.

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — A crippled part-time inventor who once pleaded no contest to fraud charges admitted today he mailed the pictures of himself and missing James R. Hoffa to the Hoffa family and to UPI.

C. Monroe Arnold Lerman said he sent the pictures to the Hoffa family because "we thought they would like to have it."

(Earlier story, p. 8)
Lerman said he sent copies of the picture to Detroit newspapers because the papers requested it.

Environmental war ban draft finished

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have completed a draft international treaty banning environmental warfare, western diplomats said today.

The proposed treaty will almost certainly be presented to the 30 nation Geneva Disarmament Conference before it concludes its summer session Aug. 29, the diplomats said.

"It is 90 to 95 per cent sure that the treaty will be tabled (introduced) before the conference session end," one official said.

Diabetic drug study may be prejudiced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study which cast doubt on the value of oral diabetic drugs taken by more than one million Americans may have been prejudiced by a conflict of interests on the part of one of the investigators, a researcher in the study said today.

Dr. Angela J. Bowen of Olympia, Wash. told the Food and Drug Administration: "It would be on mighty thin ice" if it goes forward without a plan to require warning labels on oral diabetic drugs without first investigating whether the study was valid.

US picks E. Coast areas for oil drilling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department today announced the tentative selection of 1,370 square miles of ocean bottom off New Jersey and Delaware for America's first East Coast offshore oil and gas drilling venture.

The list of 154 tracts that might be offered for sale next May represented a 73 per cent cutback from the total 557 tracts covering 5,000 square miles identified by 20 major oil companies as the most desirable drilling areas along the central East Coast.

Presenting the deposition were attorneys for Nixon, Anderson and other parties trying to force the public release of the tapes and representatives of the Watergate Special Prosecutor's Office and the General Services Administration.

Anderson said Nixon "looked tan and fit" and was "naturally dressed during the questioning and answer session."

"But he was in a very bad mood. He often replied to questions with sarcastic remarks," said Anderson on the ABC AM America show.

Nixon said in the deposition that he "felt his tapes and papers should be covered by the same guidelines as those applied to the materials of Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lyndon B. Johnson and John F. Kennedy.

Some of those materials involving other presidents have not yet been made public.

The deposition made no new disclosures on the Watergate scandal but repeated the first time Nixon spoke on the record since his resignation last August.

Nixon said the White House taping system was installed on the advice of President Lyndon B. Johnson. The advice was relayed by a mutual friend, Pepsi-Cola chief executive Don Kendall, to Nixon's chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

Nixon said when he became president he had taping devices installed by Johnson removed from the White House.

"President Johnson said to go back and tell President Nixon that it is vitally important that he install or reinstall a system of taping because he said he found it proved invaluable in writing his memoirs and also he thought very important in terms of a presidential library," Nixon said recalling the Kendall's comments to Haldeman.

"I said limit it to the offices and not in the residences and no taping of staff members' telephones and so forth and so on, which apparently had been part of the Johnson system," Nixon said.

"The Johnson taping system has been alleged by some, whether that is true or not, I don't know."

"My reason for approving it was primarily because of the historical significance."

Among other highlights of the deposition, Nixon:

— Said he never called Watergate Judge John Sirica "a wop" as he was quoted as saying on transcripts of the White House tapes. He said the tape was garbled and as best he could recall he had said "That's the kind I want" when an aide remarked that Sirica was a tough judge.

— Revealed it was he alone who decided to go to court in an attempt to stop publication of the Pentagon papers in the Daniel Ellsberg case. He said his aides were against the injunction because, as he put it, the story "was no skin off our backs."

— Denied reports that jewelry and gifts given him as President had been turned to personal use. "None have been sold and none have been appropriated," he said.

Legal sparring is peppered through the deposition. At one point, Anderson said, "my attorney asked bluntly whether Nixon felt the public had a right to know the full story."

Anderson added:

"Nixon's lawyer shot back: 'The full story of what?'

"My lawyer replied: 'The full story of Watergate.'"

"Then Nixon's lawyer demanded: 'What do you mean by Watergate counsel? The building?'"

Forgotten Americans seek US attention

© N.Y. Times Service
MEXICO CITY — In the last few days, the foreign secretary of Mexico, Emilio O. Rabasa, have been in Moscow signing an economic, scientific and technological agreement with the Soviet Union and the other members of the Communist economic bloc.
At the same time, President Luis Echeverria of Mexico, whose term of office ends next year, and who is building support as a "third world" candidate to succeed Kurt Waldheim as secretary general of the United Nations, was completing a three-week trip across the world from India, the Middle East and Northern Africa to Cuba.
These widely ignored events are reminders of two significant facts: First, that while the United States has been preoccupied with other parts of the world, our neighbors in the Western Hemisphere have been strengthening their ties with Europe, Japan and the Soviet Union. And second, that while the Soviet Union has been steadily building its sphere of influence in Eastern Europe, and China has been attempting the same in Southeast Asia, the U.S. "special relationship" with Latin America has been steadily declining.

This tumultuous city of over 10 million people, with its clamorous traffic, its wretched hovels and soaring skyscrapers, is as good a symbol as any of the changing relationships within the varied countries of Latin America and their relations with the United States.
Ten years ago, when the Cold War was in full swing and the Cuban crises were bitter memories, Latin America acquiesced, though grudgingly, in the economic and political dominance of the United States, and tended to follow Washington's lead in the United Nations.
The situation is different now. Politically, the Cold War has abated. Cuba is less of a public issue, while the U.S. domination of Panama and the Canal has become the most alarming and divisive issue since the Bay of Pigs — and is now regarded here and elsewhere in Latin America as a major threat to Kissinger's Latin American policy.
Economically, with the increase of industrialization of the major Latin American states, the direction, volume and terms of trade in the hemisphere are changing dramatically. Latin America seeks more access to the U.S. markets — the U.S. trade surplus last year was $1.2 billion — and Latin America's markets are becoming more important to the big multinational U.S. corporations, the control of which is causing new problems and tensions in this part of the world.

The Linowitz "Commission on U.S.-Latin American Relations," headed by Sol W. Linowitz, former U.S. Ambassador to the Organization of American States, summed up the problem as follows: In the last decade, "Latin America has changed; the relations between Latin America and the U.S. have changed; the role of the U.S. in world affairs has changed."
"Lack of sustained official and general public interest in Latin America by the U.S. makes it hard to impress on our country's citizens, or even on its officials, how much has been happening in the Americas. But unchanging policies in the face of rapidly changing conditions is a sure recipe for trouble."
Secretary of State Kissinger and William

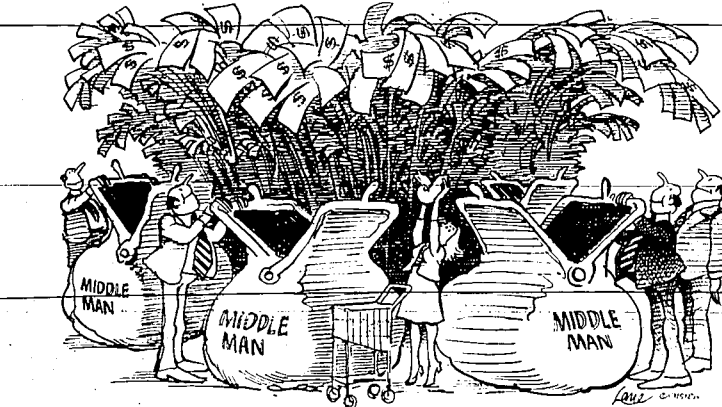

Rogers, his intelligent and well-informed assistant secretary for Latin American affairs, are aware of all this, but Kissinger is preoccupied with other problems: of arms control with the Soviet Union, the price of oil, the dangers of monetary chaos in the world, the problems of peace in the Middle East and the latest crisis in Portugal.
In the short run he is probably right. He is dealing with the immediate turmoil of world affairs and this requires 48 hours every day, but in the long run the security of the United States, and even its relations with the rest of the world, may well depend on the stability of the Americas as a whole — perhaps even more than almost anything else.
Ideology is a matter of transitory opinion, but geography is an enduring fact, and this is an immediate problem in Washington's relations with the rest of the hemisphere.
For there is much criticism in this part of the world about Washington's excessive rhetoric. Roosevelt in his Good Neighbor Policy, Kennedy with his Alliance for Progress, Johnson in his Punta Del Este talk of an American Common Market, and Kissinger in his office of a "new dialogue," have all recognized the importance of the Americas for the New World — but it has been a long time coming, and the problem remains deep.
It is immensely complicated, for most of these countries are producing more people than food or goods, and are at different stages of development, with alarming gaps between the rich and the poor.
The danger of a guerrilla war against the United States' control of Panama is real and a threat to our entire hemisphere policy. The danger of illegal Mexican immigration into the United States — 710,000 illegal Mexicans were arrested in the U.S. last year — is even more of a menace for the future, with Mexico's population expected to go from 60 million at the present time to 155 million by the end of the century.
So one fact is fairly obvious. The hemisphere is not getting the attention and priority it deserves by the U.S. Government press, radio and television.
This may be one reason why Panama is bringing the Canal to the point of crisis, and why the Mexicans are making agreements with the Communist economic bloc and identifying themselves with the organization of the underdeveloped "third world." They are in trouble at home, and all over Latin America and the Caribbean, and they are trying by new alignments and sharper confrontations to get our attention.

Dock boycott petty piracy

The longshoreman refusal to load grain sold to Russia strikes us as ill-informed petty piracy.
The United States traditionally has taken a strong position about piracy on the high seas. What about piracy in port?
What is most absurd about it is the apparent solution. AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday the blockade would end when administration officials assure him new sales of American Grain to Russia will not hurt U.S. consumers or shippers.
Meany knows as well as any farmer that demand for a product affects its price. The more wheat Russia wants to buy the higher the price will be.
Those higher prices obviously will affect the American consumer to a slight degree.
So how can the President say it won't have any effect. He can pretend and Meany can pretend and the longshoremen can pretend and the wheat will be shipped after all.
What is outrageous is that the longshoremen can set up such a demand in the first place.
Clearly the ships will be loaded eventually, no matter what happens to the price of wheat. The world economy depends on trade among nations, and so does the welfare of the longshoremen who load the ships.
So what we are left with is an exercise of muscle flexing by the dockworkers, hollow assurances from the administration and a temporary breakdown of commerce.
And the United States comes off looking like an idiot who doesn't know what's good for him.

Subsidizing strikers

Wall Street Journal
The Ford administration has stirred up a hornet's nest with its proposal to deny welfare payments to striking workers, a proposal that goes beyond its earlier policy of allowing states to determine that matter for themselves. There is no explanation of what caused the switch, but organized labor would not be in denouncing it. Union spokesmen argue that children and spouses would be unfairly penalized by the ruling.
That argument isn't without emotional appeal, although it breaks down under examination because it confuses both the role of the strike and that of welfare benefits. The strike is labor's principal weapon for bringing economic pressures to bear on management by withholding necessary services and skills. In most cases a strike over salary and working conditions is a private dispute. The public has no particular reason to be on one side or the other but it does have an interest in having both sides roughly equal in bargaining power, so that an honest bargain will be struck and the dangers of a strike and serious losses of production will be minimized.
Thus, if the public interest is to be protected both union and management should have something to lose from a strike and should have inhibitions about letting things get to that point. Union members should have to weigh whether their contract demands are worth losses of income. Management should have to judge whether it should suffer some production losses to get a better deal.
Obviously, when government pays welfare benefits to strikers it tips the labor-management balance in favor of labor. And it puts the public into the position of supporting something that is contrary to its own interests.
The argument about innocent families tugs at the heart-strings, but it is greatly overdrawn. Strikers have their families in mind when they weigh the pros and cons of walking out, so if they have a right to do so it's hard to make a convincing case that they can elect to public welfare. Strike funds are meant to tide strikers over while they're on the picket line. But the purpose of welfare is to provide a helping hand to those who are down and out, not to help support those who can work but have voluntarily chosen not to do so.
That presumably was the administration's feeling on the matter. If so, its position is a sound one. But it is also unusually courageous inasmuch as it is sure to incur the wrath of organized labor just as we move into the starting blocks for the 1976 election year.

Record harvest

One hates to respond, or even to comment, on casual effluvia of spouses of important people, but what, really, is the alternative other than to take it lying down, a posture recommended by Mrs. Ford for young unmarried American women?
Mrs. Ford's interview was in fact an act of aggression.
What she did was to use her high office as First Lady, achieved by a concatenation of romantic and felonious coincidences, to reprimand the operative sexual code of western civilization. It had enough to bear the same kind of thing from Margaret Mend, returned from a winter in Samoa and overwhelmed by the spontaneity of it all.
But the role of the civic leader is to defend standards, even if the barbarians are at the gate, which they most definitely are. Her husband's policies of détente with the Soviet Union may, by some, be excused as a necessary capitulation to overwhelming force. But Hugh Hefner of Playboy Magazine does not dispose of hydrogen bombs, leaving Mrs. Ford without a practical reason for insouciantly undermining the traditional presumption in favor of chastity.

and fidelity.
What she did not say was that if her daughter Susan had an affair, she would understand, and forgive her. What she said was that she would not be "surprised"; that, in effect, she would approve, subject — here was a strange qualification — to an investigation of the boy-lover who took Susan to his bed.
WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.
"I'd want to know pretty much about the young man that she was planning to have the affair with — whether it was a worthwhile counter or whether it was going to be one of those
One of those what? What qualifications would Mrs. Ford look for, in a suitor who aspired to be the lover of her 18-year-old daughter? That he be a moderate Republican? Surely not — that would be politically straightlaced. That he be a WASP? That too would be atavistic — HEW would not approve of any such discrimination, nor would the 14th Amendment, or the Supreme Court.

That the young man should be genuinely attached to 18-year-old Susan? I cannot imagine what that would exclude, Susan being attractive and noble, and all young men of her age who are not members of the Gay Liberation Front being normally attracted to that which a pretty 18-year-old has to give.
That he be rich? Or — at the opposite extreme poor? But surely Susan is the exclusive arbiter of those qualities in any courtship? One concludes — happily, in this case — that Mrs. Ford really hasn't thought the matter through, and one is left ignorant of whether she is capable of thinking the matter through.
President Ford, who was suddenly cast into the role of poor John Mitchell a few years ago, authorized a spokesman to say simply that he had always encouraged his wife to "speak her mind." Well, clearly the Republican platform of 1976 should commit the President to discouraging his wife from speaking her mind.

It is a rationalist and psychological superstition that it is always a good thing to speak your mind. It is nothing of the sort.
It makes no difference that some people harbor prejudices against blacks — they should suppress this bias — any more than it makes any difference at all that it is an acknowledged fact that all of us are sinners and that sexual permissiveness is in vogue. Hypocrisy, La Rochefoucauld said, is the tribute that vice pays to virtue.
Mrs. Ford reminds one, sadly, of the long reach of the behaviorists and situational ethics people. The commonplace that they infect primarily only themselves and immature students is long since exploded.
It is not even surprising that Mrs. Ford should think as she does. It is surprising, and bad news, that she abused her husband's position by speaking out on the subject in contravention of ethical values established, according to her husband who not infrequently invokes his assistance, by an authority higher even than the Supreme Court.

Pentagon position on SALT may be abandoned

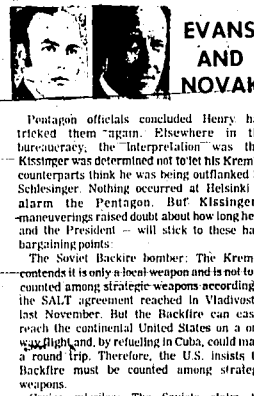

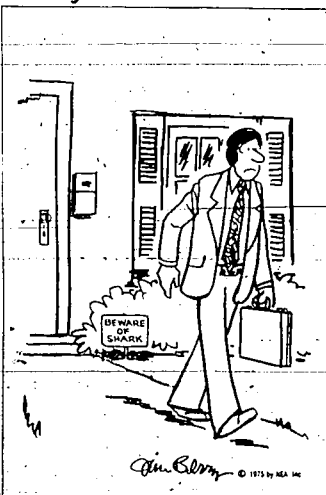

WASHINGTON — Although the Pentagon now has been brought into the heart of policymaking on Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT), there is widespread suspicion that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will abandon the military's position if necessary to avoid stalemate with the Soviets.
The fact that Kissinger pressed the Defense Department out of a seat at recent SALT conversations in Helsinki, while not inherently important, demonstrates he is not fully sharing the stage. There is, moreover, informed opinion high in the government that Kissinger will not endanger a SALT agreement by sticking to the Pentagon position on critical questions affecting long-range security of the United States and short-range political success for Gerald R. Ford.
If Kissinger seeks new compromises, the final decision will be President Ford's. He maintains total confidence in Kissinger, and some high-ranking officials cannot imagine him breaking with his secretary of state. It is that world-prevalent 1975 agreement with the Soviets.
Other officials, however, believe the President's interests are not identical to Dr. Kissinger's and that he must be prepared to support the harder-line Pentagon position.
Actually, preparations for U.S.-Soviet SALT sessions at Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, Kissinger's arch-rival inside the administration, attended two top-level planning sessions. Schlesinger and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met with the President at a third meeting, which did not include Kissinger.
The result: a unified U.S. position at Helsinki, including Kissinger's acceptance of the Pentagon's tough standard for counting Soviet MIRVs (Multiple Independent Re-entry Vehicles). That turned into a vindication of Schlesinger's arguments for hard bargaining when Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed in Helsinki to MIRV verification but picaresque maneuverings over whether the Russians would have his own man in Helsinki under cut this unity. As we reported earlier, Schlesinger requested that a high-level Pentagon representative attend the Helsinki bilateral negotiations about SALT. Acting on Kissinger's recommendation, Ford replied the State wanted only four persons per side, definitely excluding the military of both nations.

Schlesinger, therefore, sent nobody. But at Helsinki, the cozy four-man game suddenly doubled, with eight Americans and eight Russians sitting in — including, unexpectedly, Gen. Mikhail Kozlov, deputy chief of the Soviet general staff.
Pentagon officials concluded Henry had tricked them again. Elsewhere in the bureaucracy, the interpretation was that Kissinger was determined not to let his Kremlin counterparts think he was being outflanked by Schlesinger. Nothing occurred at Helsinki to alarm the Pentagon. But Kissinger's maneuverings raised doubt about how long he — and the President — will stick to these hard bargaining points.
The Soviet Backfire bomber: The Kremlin contends it is only a local weapon and is not to be counted among strategic weapons according to the SALT agreement reached in Vladivostok last November. But the Backfire can easily reach the continental United States on a one-way flight and, by refueling in Cuba, could make a round trip. Therefore, the U.S. insists the Backfire must be counted among strategic weapons.
Cruise missiles: The Soviets claim the Vladivostok agreement counts as strategic weapons submarine cruise missiles, fired from bombers, with a range over 600 kilometers. But the U.S.-military contends that this conveniently discriminates against U.S. cruise missiles which could reach the Russian heartland.

Missile size: The Pentagon, backed by U.S. disarmament director Fred Ikle, considers it vital to negotiate reductions in the huge Soviet advantage of larger missiles and believes Brezhnev is now ready to negotiate.
The question of U.S. survival may depend more on missile size than on any other issue. But in the short run, the Backfire bomber is most politically combustible. Should the U.S. permit this menace to the U.S. heartland to be omitted from strategic weapons, Ford would be open for intense political assault.

When Kissinger first returned from Helsinki, colleagues found him pessimistic about prospects for a SALT agreement this year and wedded to a tough bargaining position. But more recently, officials described him as reverting to his old theme of this being the last chance for agreement that would avoid additional multi-billion-dollar defense requirements.
If he follows that through by recommending key concessions, Mr. Ford will face the most difficult and most fateful choice of his presidency.

Church odd member on voting record

Editor, Times-News:

During the last election it was pointed out time after time that Sen. Frank Church and Orval Hansen's voting records did not support the principles of individual liberty and national sovereignty set forth in the Constitution of the United States.

Fortunately Orval Hansen was replaced by a constitutionalist, George Hansen. However, 108th Senator Church continues to cancel the vote of Sen. James McClure by voting opposite Senator McClure on almost every issue.

Since the Times-News does not publish voting records which would be a great service to the community, we will recently supported that which leads to more inflation, more government controls, higher taxes and less personal freedom.

Here are a few bills Senator Church has supported recently 1. Raising the debt ceiling, 2. Supporting more food stamp costs; 3. Supporting a tax cut when huge federal deficits are bringing on more inflation; 4. Voting $1.6 million to the Wage-Price Council to snoop into private business affairs; 5. Supported Ralph Nader's consumer agency to put his radical attorneys on the federal payroll; 6. Also Senator Church failed to support H.R. 2166 which would adjust tax brackets for workers as inflation pushes us into higher and higher tax brackets.

Based on voting record of supporting constitutional principles George Hansen rated 100 per cent, Steve Symms, 98 per cent, Senator McClure 87 per cent, while Senator Church rated poor at 20 per cent. It is obvious that Senator Church is the odd member of Idaho's representation in Congress.

He should get in line or come home.

American patience makes him marvel

Editor, Times-News:

I marvel at the boundless patience of our American populace.

Some years back, Dave Beck stole the Teamsters blind and retired with a pension of $50,000 per annum which he has since supplemented by lecturing the student unions of the Northwest, Jimmy Hoffa. In his turn, stole the Teamsters blind and was pardoned by Nixon for the Teamsters vote in 1974. He has since been lecturing our student unions on the evils of our penal system.

Need for reporter

Editor, Times-News:

Evidently, your paper is in need of a reporter for the Buhl-Hagerman area. I hereby submit my application. Should you be interested, I will mail my qualifications.

The reason for the assumption for the need: The Bicentennial Wagon Train passed through Buhl and the businessmen fed the men and animals and provided entertainment.

One of the businessmen was given a plaque for meritorious service beyond the call of duty by the Bicentennial Commission.

Being a very broadminded editor of the "Magic Valley's" oldest evening paper in Idaho, you would not have omitted this news item.

People principal problem

Editor, Times-News:

After reading the letter by Ms. Hancock, Mountain Home AFB, Aug. 14, 1975, (Times-News) complaining of the 4th of July weekend where cyclists "made" her weekend, I thought it only fitting and proper to mention the irony of another article published in the same edition of the Times-News which made the front page.

This article expressed the same disgust, maybe even stronger abhorrence than you did, with regard to such behavior. In case you probably didn't get a chance to read this article, briefly it says things like protesting noise, glaring lights, unruly crowds, real late hours, practically a drunken brawl till 3 to 4 in the morning, hazardous to children, situations trying to deal with these people erupting into near fist fights, not patrolled sufficiently by police, etc."

Could it be that the U. S. Forest Service or another government agency should be armed with laws and enforcement power to prevent such things, such as "motorcycles and trail bikes" from being ridden off road in the forest? Wouldn't that be a simple way of solving the problems here?

You'll be the star of the class if you can answer "yes," because there were no "motorcycles or trail bikes" involved in the second article!

But, you say, what else could they be referring to, what with all that damn ruckus they described?

Well, residents around Harmon Park in downtown Twin Falls were petitioning the city officials with regard to the recreation programs which included no cycling of any kind. Only things like swimming and playing ball.

You won't have to look around very far to find a fisherman who was at his long time secret fishing hole one time only to be invaded by a bunch of anglers. (No cycles involved, just fishing poles and FISH!) Situation after situation could be enumerated endlessly here, all involving different forms of recreation, etc., of which your camping trip was only a small facet. And in each case, every participant in his "thing," had his experience either shattered or at least substantially reduced by the inconsiderate, unknowing actions of other people."

As I hope you've been able to identify by now, the common denominator in these matters is not the inanimate motorcycle, or even the uninformed, inconsiderate cycle operators, but rather violations of several basic rules of human nature, in every case, caused by crowded real estate, i.e., "people pollution."

If the golden rule and guidelines of sharing, conservation and common horse sense were adhered to by all those involved — wouldn't you agree that we could all get along, while still participating in our chosen recreation?

You asked what could be done? Where could you go to do your thing?

First, and most important, make sure you have done all your own homework (you mentioned small children of your own.) Do they have the above mentioned education and do they practice it?

Secondly, make your wishes known to the public education system to stress these concepts.

Make sure your local, state, and federal politicians know how you feel.

Get involved, such as organized cyclists are doing, in efforts to help spread the word and promote educated, responsible activities within all forms of recreation.

Lastly, there are provided by federal legislation, approximately 25 million acres in the forest lands of Idaho alone where those not wishing to share their experience with motorized machines may recreate. Those areas are designated as primitive, wilderness and scenic.

You see, I also love to hear birds singing, but I wouldn't enjoy it if that was all I could hear or all I could be allowed to do, so I ride quietly along the trails and roads of the backcountry just having a ball on my motorcycle!

'Independent' key to phone service

Editor, Times-News:

To Mrs. A. J. Bennett and fellow "Independent" Tele-Subscribers:

The key word is independent in the issue over telephone time service. If an independent company chooses to economize, it cuts down on service and gives priority to the most important and the necessary, perhaps to provide you with a better quality of service in other ways. Mountain Bell assists as directed.

Twin Falls Mountain Bell is not a big company. Big is not 48 toll positions and ten on directory, but we handle 34 towns in the Magic Valley with the kind of service that makes folks think we're big.

Only 34 towns? Try 34 x varied dialing instructions x varied independent company services x 3 kinds of coin phones x 3 ways to bill most calls x hundreds of long distance rates and routes. Toss in time and charge and a good number of SLOW calls to Mexico that require prayer and patience on the part of both customer and operator.

I wish I could say we're perfect. We've certainly been programmed to try to be everything to everybody. When we're not, at the next time a Mountain Bell operator tells you, "I'm sorry, we no longer provide that service," ask to speak to the supervisor or better yet, call your business office for an explanation.

Your business with us is appreciated and I hope expressed whenever we take your calls. We can handle 34 towns and still find the time to say:

"Good morning, Magic Valley!"

May I take your call, please.

Cassia staff confers

BURLEY — Teachers from all over the Cassia County School District attended two workshops Monday.

The workshops are sponsored by Idaho State University and both are federally funded.

One of the workshops was on open classroom teaching of mathematics. It was sponsored by the ISI teacher corps and was directed by Dr. Melvin Resnort of ISI.

The teacher corps is an in-training program for students in their last two years toward teaching degrees at ISI.

Cassia County has one of seven such projects in Idaho.

Team leader is Jeanette Welch, who had four interns at Miller Elementary School last year. They taught five 6-week mini-courses. The team of interns will move to the new Mountain View Elementary School when school opens in Cassia County Monday.

The interns spend about 50 per cent of their time in the classroom, 30 per cent on their own college courses and 20 per cent on community work, primarily with parent volunteers in the classroom.

The other workshop deals with child behavior and is under the direction of Dr. David W. Austin of ISI. It began Friday and ends Thursday at Burley High School.

It is designed to offer alternative methods of dealing with the child both in school and at home.

Discussion is covering the need for order and discipline in the classroom and at home, the goals of the misbehaving child, means of encouraging the child and ways to make school stimulating and pleasant for the child.

The 15 teachers attending the workshop can earn college credits.

Dr. Austin said Monday that workshop was developed because "the changes in attitudes and the structure of society have created a need for changes in the way we deal with children."

He said the old ways are now proving ineffective, "as evidenced by the breakdown of discipline in schools."

The workshops are designed, he said, to gain the understanding and cooperation of students still in elementary school and eliminate the problems that now arise later in junior high and high schools.

The teacher preparation is only the first of three phases.

Dr. Austin said he will begin a parent education program here in early September. This will cover 10 evenings, one each week, for those parents interested in participating.

The parent program will be followed by direct contact with parents, teachers and children. Dr. Austin said he would visit the classrooms during that stage and talk with people individually.

Dr. Austin said that, in past groups last year, students involved in the program "showed a significant improvement in self-esteem" over those in the regular classrooms outside the program.

WASHINGTON, AP — The U.S. Customs Service said it accidentally stumbled across a smuggler's hideaway that may contain the largest marijuana haul in history, a 40-ton "mountain" of pot valued at $22 million.

The crew of a Customs Service helicopter looked down in surprise Saturday as they flew over the eastern tip of Grand Bahamas Island, a smuggler's haven and believe that a pirate center.

The pilots recognized "hills and pieces" of a familiar substance that were under cover, a spokesman said Monday in announcing the haul.

"These guys have been looking at marijuana for years. They knew they'd found something."

He said "it was discovered purely by accident." The Miami-based helicopter happened to fly over the area after searching for a helicopter downed at sea.

Customs noticed the Bahamian police commissioner and the helicopter ferried his men to the scene.

Blaine delays school

HAILEY — The Blaine County School Board Monday has voted to delay the opening day of school two days to Wednesday Aug. 27.

New construction at Flemingway and Bellevue elementary schools is behind schedule, according to school principals there. The construction is part of a building program throughout the district.

District voters passed a $4 million levy in 1974 for construction of a new high school and additions to all other schools.

Bellevue Principal Claude Ballard said he felt strongly two rooms being added on at Bellevue will not be completed by Monday, the initial date set for opening.

He said there is no carpet laid, no light fixtures or heaters installed, no sinks or storage areas and no fire alarm system installed.

Work at Flemingway "is a lot farther from being done than at Bellevue," said Vic Jepson, Ketchum elementary principal. Elementary children at Flemingway may have to bring sack lunches, Jepson said, until the new kitchen addition is completed.

Bill Mattheuser, clerk of the works, who is supervising all construction said "I personally think all the buildings will be operable by Friday."

However, neither he or Supt. Wayne Fagg could guarantee the rooms would be sufficiently complete to start classes.

Mattheuser said, "By Wednesday I can give you an absolutely definitive answer — all I have now is promises," (from builders Clark Brothers, Idaho Falls.)

Jepson and Ballard argued that if rooms could be usable by Friday, that would still not leave enough time for teachers to set up their rooms by Monday.

In addition Fagg said the furniture for the new rooms has not arrived, although it is expected this week.

The board voted unanimously to delay the opening day of school.

All principals and the board agreed some policy must be set up in the district to evaluate teachers. However, none of the members last night were in any hurry to start an evaluation program. The board let the matter pass until there is contact with the Blaine County Education Association.

All principals agreed that the district teachers should be involved in any procedures setting up teacher evaluation.

The board voted to raise elementary and secondary lunch prices to 50 cents and adult lunches to 80 cents. That is a raise of 10 cents for elementary, 5 cents for secondary and 5 cents for adults over last year.

The board has said in the past the lunch program lost money last year due in part to many free lunches.

Kindergarten will not be conducted at the LDS Church in Bellevue this year. The board decided to move classes into the Hailey Junior High School.

Members of the board thought the kindergartens should be located on school grounds if possible. Kindergarten in Ketchum will be at Flemingway Elementary and at Carey in the school there.

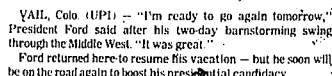

In a related matter, Fagg announced that Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell has declared "districts to cancel initiative on emergency levy for kindergarten construction or operation."

The Blaine County School District had planned a $40,000 emergency levy. Fagg said the district would have to use funds from the $85,000 emergency fund to complete the program the board has promised.

TWIN FALLS — Jerry D. DeBools has returned to his Air Force Base after completion of a two week aircraft accident investigation school at Norton AFB, Calif.

DeBools, son in law of Mr. and Mrs. Dick E. Wise, Twin Falls, is an on-call equipment specialist at HUI AFB.

"It was a very productive, very constructive and a very worthwhile trip," said Ford, who appeared tired but buoyed as he stepped from his helicopter at this Rocky Mountain retreat.

On energy: "I know we can have a responsible energy program without destroying our environment."

Ford was reported to be meeting today with representatives of two western wheat organizations that have overseas markets and want to protest the work stoppage affecting grain shipments to Russia.

Ford, aides tackle major issues

Ford's comments on the busing issue came in response to a question from conference delegate John Gwynn Jr., president of the Illinois state chapter and Peoria Branch of the NAACP.

"I respectfully disagree that race relations are being pushed under the rug in this administration," Ford said. The President and his team used the conference to put to voters their side of key issues.

US astronaut faces surgery

© Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — A suspicious growth has been found on the left lung of Astronaut Donald K. Slayton and the 51-year-old spaceman has been ordered to a Houston cancer center for exploratory surgery next week.

A small shadow about the size of a lead-pencil eraser was detected in X-rays taken after the recent Apollo-Soyuz space flight. At the conclusion of which Slayton and his American teammates were suspected to inhalation of dangerous nitrogen tetroxide fumes.

The fumes, an inaccessible part of the chest, was not a result of the gas inhalation, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday afternoon. Comparison of post-flight X-rays with one taken before the ASTP mission revealed a "barely discernible" shadow in the same place, NASA said.

Slayton's trip to the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute is expected to force postponement of a two-nation tour of the American and the Russian members of the ASTP team.

The suspicious growth found in early post-flight X-rays apparently has been puzzling NASA physicians and lung specialists for a fortnight. According to Dr. William Markel, vice president of the American Cancer Society, the growth described in NASA's announcement does not sound like the most commonly encountered form of lung cancer. Markel explained that the type of cancer that usually strikes men of Slayton's age is "bronchiogenic," meaning that it occurs fairly high up in the lungs. The NASA announcement said this lesion has been detected "in the lower periphery of (the) left lung."

There are several types of cancers that develop in this part of the lung, Markel said, but compared with the incidence of bronchiogenic cancer these are rather rare.

Markel said that when bronchiogenic lung cancer is suspected it is usually possible to obtain a tissue sample with an instrument called the bronchoscope which is introduced down the windpipe without any need for chest surgery. Specialists apparently were unable to reach the suspected area by this route, Markel said.

It will probably be necessary to cut through the ribs cage in the vicinity of the suspected tumor, necessitating the removal of a section of at least one rib, Markel speculated. If the growth turns out to be non-cancerous, Slayton's recuperation after the exploratory surgery should be fairly rapid, the cancer society official added.

Slayton will go into M.D. Anderson, one of the world's outstanding centers for treatment of cancer, on Monday and will be operated on the following day.

Dairymen seek hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dairy farmers who recently warned consumers to expect a 2 to 4 cent increase on a half gallon of milk this fall are now asking the government to let them raise the price a month sooner.

But chances the request will be granted are dim, says an Agriculture Department official.

A request filed with the Agriculture Department Tuesday by the National Milk Producers Federation asked for an emergency hearing on a proposal to speed up operation of the complex milk pricing formula, which is to force increases in drinking-grade milk during September through November.

Kennedy files requested

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A majority of the City Council unofficially asked police officials Tuesday to change their position and open their files on the Robert Kennedy assassination to a county probe of the case.

Police Chief Ed Davis and the Police Commission both had refused to release their 10-volume summary of police proceedings after Kennedy's assassination the night he won the 1968 Democratic Presidential primary.

There was no immediate comment from police officials on whether they would change their mind in light of the action by nine of the 15 members. It also was unclear whether an expected council vote next month making the request official would be binding on Davis.

The resolution calls on the Police Department to "immediately make available all evidence in its possession related to the assassination" of Kennedy, including the summary, statements of witnesses, raw files, photos, crime lab reports and movies showing a reenactment of the crime.

Reactor spread produces danger of more N-bombs

© N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — The widespread use of nuclear reactors in the world's less developed countries would lead to the production of enough plutonium for these countries to make 3,000 small atomic bombs each year, according to a study done for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Because of the great potential dangers of plutonium and because of a second finding that existing international controls are inadequate and unlikely to grow stronger, the study recommended that the federal government not encourage the sale of American reactors to the less developed countries.

The study also concluded that it would not be in the economic self-interest of many of the less developed nations to buy the presently available "reactors" from vendors in the United States because of the reactors' unreliability, inappropriate size and other reasons.

The question of what steps the United States should take in attempting to impose safeguards on the nuclear equipment exported to other countries has become a subject of debate in Congress and the Ford Administration. On the basis of the reactors now operating or on order, four United States companies now have 70 per cent of the world market, with Westinghouse and General Electric heavily dominant.

But American industry and its supporters are worried that if the United States adopts too tough a stance on what steps have to be taken to make sure reactor plutonium is not turned into bombs, companies in Europe, Japan and Canada will start winning a larger share of the market.

The $96,000 study on the commercial, economic and security implications of selling reactors to approximately 100 less developed nations in South America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia, was made by Richard J. Barber Associates, Inc., a Washington consulting firm. The 350-page study was completed six months ago but not made public at that time by the Energy Research and Development Administration, which is a new federal agency formed early this year after the break-up of the Atomic Energy Commission. In response to a request, however, the agency made the report available to the New York Times.

The study's conclusion in February, that international controls were weak differed sharply from that offered by the research administration's officials during hearings held by the Senate Government Operations Committee in April.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for five years and have two children. Ward is 26 and I'm 25. Ward teaches sixth grade students, and he loves his work. That's the trouble: he loves it too much. All summer, he mooned around like a lovesick calf saying how much he missed his "kids." He has two children of his own who could use a little more of his attention.

Last semester, Ward talked endlessly about one of his girl students. He would even call her on the phone to visit with her in the evenings. He says it's not exactly a "physical" attraction, but he would like to see her mature and blossom, and he would even like to have a hand in choosing her husband! Is this normal for a husband and father, Abby? On weekends he'd get "the blues" and could hardly wait for Monday so he could get back to his "kids." And on Fridays he would get the blues again. I think it's wonderful for a man to love his work so much, but he makes me feel as though the children and I are a drag.

Do you think his feelings for his "kids" at school have reached a dangerous point? Please tell me what to do about this.

WORRIED WIFE

Teacher in school daze

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is either very immature or dangerously involved (emotionally) with his work. He needs counseling to get his priorities in order. Urge him to get it, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My father makes a lot of mistakes when he talks. He says, "He don't," and, "They was." I am only 14 and happen to believe that it is never too late for a person to learn. My father is only 34, and he was born in this country.

Sometimes I correct him in front of people because if I do, my father has a hot temper and hates to be corrected, especially in front of people.

Shouldn't adults take criticism with a smile and appreciate it even if it does come from a 14-year-old kid?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: No one, regardless of his age, appreciates criticism from a 14-year-old kid in front of others. Your intentions may be good, but your timing is poor. Cool it.

DEAR ABBY: No one would think of dropping in on his minister without calling first to set up an appointment, right? So why do ministers think they have the right to drop in on their parishioners without any advance notice just because they happen to be in the neighborhood?

One afternoon last week, I entertained some out-of-town friends and served some of my homemade apple cider. I am not a big drinker, but it was very warm that day, so I had more than I should have—and on an empty stomach, yet. Well, no wonder had my guests departed when my minister rang the bell. I don't remember what I said, but I do recall that I babbled on and on and just couldn't quit talking. The minister couldn't get a word in edgewise. I am sure I made a perfect fool out of myself.

Anyway, now I can't look him in the eye. I hope you put this in your column because I know he reads you, and I want him to know that I don't usually sip cider in the afternoons—also, if he ever calls again, to please phone first.

ON THE MALL TWIN FALLS

Julia Massey, Bopp wed in TF ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Julia Ann Massey and Robert Allen Bopp were married in a candlelight ceremony Aug. 9 at the Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conrad Massey and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby K. Bopp.

Rev. Donald Winterward solemnized the double-ring ceremony. Baskets of yellow gladioli and white daisies and brass, candleabra—burning white tapers formed a semi-circle. Altar flowers were white gladioli and white daisies and the pews were marked with white satin bows. Candles were lighted by Robert Allen Bopp, the bridegroom's brother, and Renae Kinsfather, cousin of the bridegroom.

Georgianna Massey was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Rhetta Massey, sister of the bride, and Susan Southwick of Buhl.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floorlength gown of organza. A peau d'ange lace capelet was accented with iridescent palmettes and seed pearls. The attached chapel train was trimmed with the peu d'ange lace. Her garden hat was trimmed with lace and satin streamers.

A point-lace handkerchief made and carried by the bride's paternal grandmother in 1911 was carried by the bride with her colonial bouquet of yellow roses and xysophylla.

Dr. William E. Thornton, San Antonio, Tex., was best man. Groomsmen were Robert R. Butler and Craig Hansen, both Twin Falls. Ushers were Brent Kinsfather, Hollister, and Samuel and Steven Massey, both Arlington, Tex.

A garden reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Guests were seated at round tables covered with French striped cloths in the bride's chosen colors of yellow and blue. All-green bouquets in wicker baskets centered the tables. The Old Time Fiddlers entertained guests during the reception. The white four-tiered wedding cake laced in green and decorated with fresh flowers centered the serving table.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco the couple will reside in Twin Falls where the bridegroom is employed by Gordon Paving Co.

The rehearsal dinner for the bridal party was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Couple weds in temple rites

MURTAUGH — Kristi McFarland and Curtis L. Eames were married in a double-ring ceremony Aug. 7 in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McFarland; Murtaugh, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kay Eames, Burley.

After the ceremony, the bridegroom's parents were hosts at a luncheon in Salt Lake City.

The couple was honored at a reception the evening of Aug. 8 at the Murtaugh LDS Church.

The bride wore a floor-length empire gown of sheer dotted swiss and re-embroidered lace. The dress featured long full sleeves and a high neckline with standup lace collar. A lace crown held her long two tiered veil of illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses.

Kodi McFarland, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Debbie Howard and Pat Hulse.

Karl Eames, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Curtis Mendenhall, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Kelly McFarland, brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

Shirley Syverson, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The wedding party greeted guests before a white austrian backdrop accented with yellow roping and while austrian valance over yellow. Arrangements of yellow mums, white gladioli and fern were at each end of the reception line. Bouquets of daisy clusters, forget-me-nots, fern and yellow boys topped the aisle posts separating the receiving line from the serving area.

Guests were seated at quarter-tables topped with yellow fringed cloths and centered with old fashioned pitcher and bowls arranged with fresh daisy bouquets.

The bride's table was skirted to the floor in a nylon flounce cloth edged in yellow. On either side of the cake were arrangements in hurricane lamp holders of yellow daisy bouquets.

The three tiered wedding cake sat atop a fountain. Circling the fountain at the base were six heart shaped cakes. The cake was topped with a nosegay of yellow roses and white gladioli. Fresh cut flowers were arranged around the base of the cake.

The serving area was backed by a white austrian backdrop accented with yellow valance and enhanced by a crystal chandelier over the cake.

Mrs. Ralph Breeding cut the wedding cake and Mrs. Glen Breeding served the punch and fruit kabobs.

Linda Mendenhall, Barbara Eames, Lorri Elquist and Penny Pickett were in charge of the gifts. Gifts were carried in by LaDawn Eames and Clinton Eames.

Wedding music was played throughout the evening by Brian Peterson. Songs were sung by Patricia Peterson and Debbie Stasny. Dues were sung by Jay and Susan Moyes and Kim and Patricia Peterson.

The bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Glen Breeding and Mrs.

South looked over dummy and thought, "Too bad North didn't respond one notrump. I would have put him in three which he would have wrapped up."

Then South got down to the really important problem. How was he going to make four spades?

He started by playing dummy's king of diamonds. Maybe West had underlined the ace. West hadn't and the defense played a second and third diamond. South ruffed the third diamond and played two top trumps. At that point he could play his ace of hearts, cash the clubs and lead a second heart. If either opponent had started with king-small or queen-small, he would have been end played. That didn't happen. The hand looked like one with all suits breaking quite evenly, so South tried another line.

He cashed the clubs, stopping in dummy. Then he led a low heart. His plan was to finesse his nine and it would have worked except for one thing. East had been thinking while the play went on. When that heart was led, East hopped up with his king.

This unusual second-hand-high play left South with no way to make his contract.

The answer to our reader is that his hand qualifies as an opening bid in any and all systems. All opening bids don't lead to a profit. Minico Jaycees sponsor bicycle check

RUPERT — A bicycle safety program follows fast on the heels of a shopping spree in the Minico Jaycees' program.

The Jaycees, in conjunction with the city of Rupert, will sponsor a bicycle safety check this Saturday at Neptune Park here.

This past Saturday the Minico Jaycees sponsored a shopping spree at Nelson's Food Market in Rupert for two people under the chairmanship of Richard Peterson.

Winner of a two-minute grocery-grabbing spree was Rex Sutton, Rupert. Sutton raced through Nelson's market Monday night and garnered $165.16 in food.

Wallace Wilcox, Rupert, had been given a minute Saturday and gathered $68.87 in groceries.

Ten-dollar gift certificates toward ham or turkey went to Dale Donner and T. C. Johnson, both of Rupert, and Paul Haupt, Burley.

Stated on the "bike" safety agenda, starting at 9 a.m., is an inspection of all bicycles brought to the park and a safety course. Tests will be conducted on braking, maneuvering, riding in a circle, steering and balancing at slow speed.

The city of Rupert is furnishing trophies for winners in each age division. A city police officer will also talk on bike safety and will help with the testing.

The bicycle safety check is open to anyone and "free" of charge.

DeMoss said the purpose of the Jaycee safety check is to promote safe biking and lessen bicycle accidents.

He said bicycle reflector strips will be given each person registering a bicycle for the check and a safety inspection decal will be issued to all bikes that pass safety standards.

DeMoss said bikes will be inspected for good handlebar grips, a warning device such as horn or bell, good fenders, safe sprocket and chain guard, sound coaster or wheel brakes, red rear reflector, tight handlebars and seat, and sound frame, fork, wheels, tires and pedals.

The shopping spree and bicycle safety check are only two of a list of projects established by the Minico Jaycees. It includes another bike safety check in March.

Another project is next week, when the Jaycees sponsor the youth rodeo Thursday and Friday in conjunction with the County Fair.

Forest; grassland added to wilderness

SALMON — Fifty acres of forest and grassland near the middle of the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness in Idaho soon will become a part of that national wilderness area.

The property has been purchased by The Nature Conservancy for $178,000 and will be managed by the U.S. Forest Service.

The property had been used as a hunting camp and one dwelling and some smaller structures now stand on it.

According to The Nature Conservancy with western regional offices in San Francisco, the forest service plans eventually to destroy all the buildings.

LID created at Salmon

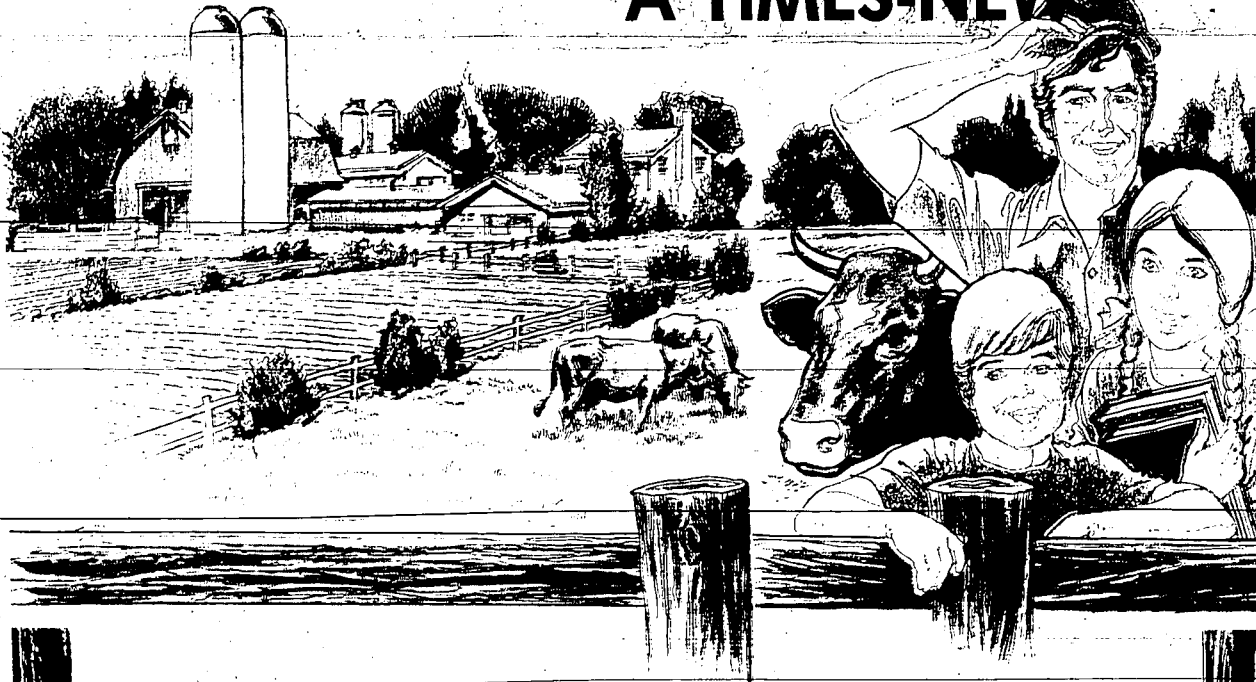

SALMON — The Salmon City Council has passed a resolution of intent to create a local improvement district for a sewer system on the west side of the Salmon River.

The next step will be to notify property owners.

The council's action now will enable the city to go ahead with an application for a $500,000 Title 10 Environmental Development Act.

MV mental health program assured of US funding

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Maple Valley's mental health program has improved greatly in recent months and is assured of federal funding, according to federal and state officials.

The National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) last spring issued a scathing review of the local program, criticizing it for a lack of leadership and staff commitment, inaccessible facilities, poor emergency service in the Burley-Rupert area and inadequate records, among other things. The program was in jeopardy of having its funding cut off.

But now, according to Shirley Middleton, NIMH mental health program consultant and writer of the federal review, all but a couple of technical problems with the program have been ironed out. NIMH is tied to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ms. Middleton, who made a second two-day review of the program in the latter part of July, said that the local mental health program now shows "a tremendous esprit de corps and goal direction."

She said there has been a substantial "increase in services provided. . . I think things were pretty well worked out."

The federal grant of $29,319 to the program is assured, she said, and another $200,000 for a regional mental health center building in Twin Falls will be available over two years.

Ms. Middleton said there now is "a good deal more leadership" in the program. She said the mental health center has worked out an "excellent service to Chicanos" and "some very positive working relationships with the Child Development Center," two areas which she previously had criticized.

She said that in the recent review she had no criticism of program services and only had found two quite technical problems.

Dennis Murray, director of the regional mental health center, said the center's response to the first, highly critical review "essentially puts us much further down the road" than other mental health centers which have only been operating a year.

Murray said there is always "a certain amount of anxiety and problems" with "any organization that's trying to build a major program in a year's time." But now, he said, the local mental health program is strengthened and there is "a good general feeling among the staff."

Some of the specific steps taken in improving the program, he said, were providing evening hours of operation, sending a mental health worker to migrant council offices a half day each week, obtaining more and accessible office space, developing a "vastly improved" record keeping system and formalizing goals and a schedule for community consultation and education programs.

Votes less after remark

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — When President Ford saw his wife Betty's television remarks that "she wouldn't be surprised" if daughter Susan had a premarital affair, he jokingly accused her of losing him 10 million votes.

The next morning, however, after reading the newspapers, he said she cost him 30 million votes, he jokingly told news media representatives Tuesday.

Tower completed

JEROME — Construction has been completed this week on a new 120-foot tower for Jerome radio station KART.

The new tower located one mile west and a half mile north of Jerome will replace the tower presently in use north of Jerome, according to Allen Lee, general manager.

Lee said future plans call for the construction of a new radio station at the new tower site. "The new station will house both KART and KPMA stations," Lee said.

He said the new tower will be in working order by the first of the month and will provide a stronger signal to radio listeners. "We won't be able to broadcast any farther than we are now. However, the new tower will provide a much stronger signal in our listening area," Lee said.

Minidoka meeting planned today

RUPERT — A Minidoka County Historical Society official will meet the architect and engineers on costs for the planned historical museum here.

Harvey Hollinger, Paul, chairman of the building drive, said he will meet with the engineers and architect Peter Schell, Spectrum Drafting in Rupert.

The figures will be presented to historical society members Thursday night. The Minidoka County Historical Society museum is planned for the northwest corner of the Minidoka County Fairgrounds. It is the permanent project of the county's Bicentennial Committee, chaired by John Cameron, Rupert.

The historical society is working up plans and specifications for the building. Working with Hollinger on the project are the society's president, Martin O'Donald and directors William Whitlam, H.C. Borchard and Ted Hamby, all Rupert.

Concrete blocks to be used in the building will be sold for $1 each, Cameron announced last week. He said today each donor's name will be inscribed on the plaque placed in the entry hall of the museum.

Sale of the blocks will officially begin at the historical society's booth when the Minidoka County Fair opens next week.

The architect's drawings show a 46-by-76-foot building with the main entrance facing south for access from the parking areas.

The concrete block building will have a prestressed concrete sloping roof. Plans allow for expansion on the west. There will be a display area, adequate storage facilities, a director's office, meeting room, kitchenette and work area.

Cassia kindergarten more than expected

BURLEY — More youngsters have been registered in the new Cassia County kindergarten program than estimated.

Irene Buckley, head of kindergarten curriculum for the district, said that 274 5-year-olds were registered Monday for the optional program authorized earlier this year by the state legislature.

The sign-ups totaled about 40 over earlier estimates, with the Burley area more than accounting for the increase.

Miss Buckley said 183 students were signed up for the Springdale School, where Burley kindergartners will attend.

Oakley will have 29, Declo 24 and Malta 25.

Another three are signed up at Albion, where they will be combined under one teacher with the first and second graders.

Dr. Malcolm Allred, Logan, Utah, was conducting a workshop with kindergarten teachers Tuesday and today. Dr. Allred has a doctorate in early childhood development and presented new ideas to the teachers.

Miss Buckley said the teachers will visit the homes of all kindergarten students next week after contacting parents and making appointments.

Classes will begin Sept. 2. Instruction will be individualized so that each youngster can advance according to his ability.

Jerome County Sheriff's Posse leads parade through downtown Jerome

Camas fair set Thursday

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — The Camas County Fair opens Thursday and runs through Sunday with a schedule of activities unlike those of any other fair in the area.

Interest centers on the snow judging contest, with residents making daily visits to a certain spot on Main Street where the remaining patch of snow on Soldier Mountain can still be viewed.

Ethel Lee, secretary in the county agent's office, said it is "very unusual" for any of last winter's snow to still remain on the southside of Soldier. Only a small patch remains and it can't be seen from just anywhere in Fairfield.

The "viewing" site, in front of the old Bunting tractor building, attracts people daily, as interest grows in the contest to most correctly name the date when the last of the old snow will leave.

The 4-H part of the fair runs Thursday through Saturday, ending with the fat livestock sale at 2:30 p.m. and the awards assembly, both at the livestock arena at the forest service facility.

The other fair activities, sponsored by the American Legion and chamber of commerce, under the auspices of the Camas County Fair Board, include at least three horsehoe contests, a log cutting contest and a contest which will feature the clean shaven against bearded men to see which can pull the other into a big hole filled with water.

Other more conventional fair activities include a parade at 3 p.m. Saturday followed by a man and wife wheelbarrow contest, an evening horsehoe contest and a western dance Saturday night at the Legion Hall, featuring special entertainment.

Sunday begins with a breakfast served from 7 to 9 a.m. by the Legion members at the firehouse. A men's horsehoe contest will follow with cutting, log weight and scale guessing contest scheduled next. Kid street races, a greased pole climb and chicken scramble will follow through the day.

The last event will be a horse club jamboree Sunday afternoon held behind the county jail.

The 4-H exhibits will be judged at 10 a.m. Thursday with demonstrations scheduled Friday. The style revue will be held at 10 a.m. Friday followed by a horse show. Saturday morning livestock judging and showmanship starts at 10:30 a.m.

Blaine judge may lift order on funds

By BART QUENNEL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer may modify his order to impound $200,000 from Blaine County's budget for construction of a judicial building.

Kramer said today he has not seen the legal guidance letter from the Idaho attorney general's office which suggests Kramer exceeded his power.

If what he read in the newspapers is correct, Kramer said, it appears the County should not have had $200,000 in alleged surplus funds.

"If that is correct, the order seems rather academic," Kramer said.

He said the impoundment order would have no effect if the funds are proven to be illegal. The impoundment order was made secure matching funds, Kramer said, from the Law Enforcement Planning Commission.

"I was only assisting the county to obtain matching funds," Kramer said.

Kramer said his order to the county sheriff to construct a judicial building did not carry a date. The county, he said, under law can levy three mills without a levy election.

Kramer is not backing down from his request for a new judicial building, he said.

Parade crowd tops record

JEROME — The approaching fall season threatened to muddy plans for the opening day of fair and rodeo activities in Jerome Tuesday.

The threatened rain however, failed to dampen Jerome County residents' spirit and they turned out in the largest numbers ever to watch the parade which opened the event and to view the first night of rodeo activities.

It is anticipated that winners of the parade will be announced during tonight's rodeo activities.

The first night of the rodeo featured the Flier Wranglers and the Gooding Liberty Belles.

In the barrel racing, four times world champion Joe Alexander, Car, Wyo., is in the lead with 69 points. In calf roping, a fast run to start the rodeo was made by Dac Brock, Pueblo, Colo., in 9.5 seconds. Second place went to Bud Lytle, Sterling, Okla., with a time of 10.1 seconds.

In the saddle bronc riding, Clyde Longfellow, Kendrick, leads with 65 points and tied for second are Marvin Joyce, Montana, and Chancey Weldon, Wyoming, with 63 points.

In steer wrestling, Del. Nose, a Montana cowboy, tipped his steer over in 7 seconds. In second place is Benny Stoddard, Rexburg, with 7.5 seconds.

Leading in the barrel racing is Sandy Curcio, with 16.3 seconds. Harold Hapston, Richland, Wash., leads in the bull riding with 66 points.

The second night of rodeo activity will begin at 8:30 p.m. today.

Adding to the excitement at the fairgrounds was a small fire in one of the food concession stands after it had closed for the evening. According to Jerome Volunteer Fire Department personnel, someone had apparently left a can of grease on a hot plate which was still turned on and it became overheated and started to smoke.

Migrant Council to move offices

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Idaho Migrant Council here is moving its office to Burley next month.

Juan Balderas, regional coordinator for the migrant council, said Tuesday that the new office will open Sept. 17 at the corner of 13th Street and Normal Avenue. The building will be owned by the council.

The council previously had an office in Burley but closed it. The present office is on Seventh Street in Rupert.

Balderas said the move is being made because the council needs a "much bigger building" to house its varied programs at different times of the year.

"We couldn't house them all here in one place," Balderas explained. "The new building is big enough to house anything."

The Burley building was acquired through a commercial development loan from the Farm Home Administration.

"When it's paid for it will be a community building," Balderas said.

An open house is planned in September as soon as the council is set up in its new headquarters.

The migrant council office will be upstairs. The Child Development Center established an office on the ground floor in May.

When the renovations are completed, Balderas said the building will be "multi-services center with all services under one roof."

Among services offered by the council at its new headquarters will be recreation, a social services worker, community health aides and a job developer. Balderas said the council also makes many referrals to other agencies because of its limited funds.

The regional coordinator said emphasis now was on completing renovation of the offices. He said sources would then be obtained to cover cost of completing meeting rooms which would be available for community use.

GOP rally Friday

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, will be honored Friday at the Region 5 Republican Summer Rally in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Sen. James McClure, R - Idaho; Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell and other elected officials will attend the event beginning at 8 p.m., according to ticket chairman William Chaney.

The featured speaker will be television personality Art Linkletter and Joe Bartlett, minority clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives, will be a special guest.

Slim Dossey and his Gem State Gems will provide entertainment.

A public reception will follow the program.

Admission prices are $25 for adults and $10 for youths 17 and under. Tickets will be available at the door.

More information may be obtained from Chaney at 733-8912.

Sheep moved from creek

HAILEY — Fifty dead lambs and ewes left in a creek east of Triumph were removed Tuesday by Wendell rancher Jim Campbell.

The U.S. Forest Service has erected signs warning campers below the area not to drink water that flows through Federal Gulch campground, seven miles east of Triumph. Tom Farr, Ketchum ranger, said the campground would not be closed.

The decaying carcasses were left in and around a small feeder creek which empties into the east fork of Big Wood River.

Campbell said Tuesday the sheep were his. Most of the 50 carcasses were lambs which smothered, he said. The leaders in a band of 1,500 lambs and 950 ewes refused to cross the creek, he said, which bunched the band tightly causing the deaths.

Campbell, a Wendell rancher who runs nearly 6,000 ewes, said herders were moving the lambs off the mountain to ship them.

Inexperienced sheep herders and their dogs kept pushing the band from behind, into a tighter bunch, he said. Campbell said he was not with the herders at the time and did not know about the smothered lambs until later.

He said the sheep died about three weeks ago. Campbell said all of the carcasses were removed Tuesday.

A Forest Service employee, Barry Davis, confirmed that the sheep had been removed and quiklime had been spread on the ground where the carcasses had lain.

Campbell said he "intentionally intended to get the sheep out, when it happened and then I didn't get around to it."

Dave Dingman, district environmentalist, said he would remind the Forest Service that any person knowingly leaving the carcass of any animal within a quarter of a mile of a stream of water longer than 24 hours without burying it is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Farr said he first became aware of the problem of Monday, however, he said on Monday his office had sent two people into Federal Gulch to check the reported carcasses three or four days ago and they had confirmed there were dead sheep there.

There is spring water in the camp area, Farr said, where people can get drinking water without going to the feeder stream.

Dingman said he would see if the Health Department could force the Forest Service to close the campground.

Farr was to meet a delegation from the State Health Department Tuesday asking that the campground be closed until the situation is abated.

Wound treated

TWIN FALLS — Michael Duane Hankins, Twin Falls Labor Camp, was treated for a gunshot wound in the hand and forearm following an accidental shooting.

Hankins told police he was showing a friend a 380 automatic pistol when he removed the clip but fired the gun with one bullet still in the chamber. The bullet entered the palm of his hand and came out the forearm.

Hankins was treated Monday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and released.

Burley okays pay increase for mayor and councilmen

BURLEY — The Burley City Council has raised the salary of the mayor and councilmen.

Facing a deadline of 60 days prior to the November election, the council approved a $1,250 per month salary for the mayor and a $200 per month salary for each member of the council.

Councilman Jerry Vegwert opposed any raise for councilmen, but was overridden by fellow members. He then joined in passage of the ordinance.

The action means a $50 actual raise for the mayor. Mayor Charles Shadduck now draws a salary of $900 per month and a $100 expense account. Councilmen now get $150 per month salary.

In a related action the council eliminated the $100 per month expense account for the mayor. City Attorney William Parsons brought up the subject, reminding the council there had been discussion of it previously because of income tax confusion.

Because of the tax problems, the city last year began giving the money to the mayor's salary for both accounting and tax purposes. Social Security taxes and retirement contribution payments were made on the total amount.

Councilman Cloyd Taylor, who had made the motion to set the salaries at their levels, said the council had decided to drop the expense account.

Parsons agreed, but explained that no official action had been taken to eliminate it.

The council had instructed Parsons at its last meeting to draw up the new ordinance for raising leaving the figure blank.

Monday night Vegwert asked to separate the salaries into two ordinances.

Vegwert said he could see "no reason to raise the compensation of councilmen." He termed the service "part of my civic duty," adding that "it is $50 I'd still be here."

"I can't vote a $50 raise for myself," he said.

Vegwert explained that he considered a public service similar to being president of the chamber of commerce, the Rotary Club or any other civic organization.

L.V. Morgan, president of the council, disagreed, saying council work took more time.

Morgan argued that a councilman should be available to his constituents. He said he has been on the council 7½ years and started when the salary was $100, which he had considered adequate.

Sheriff asks assistance

TWIN FALLS — At the request of Grand County, Utah, authorities, Sheriff Paul Corder is asking for assistance in identifying the body of a woman found near Cibo, Utah, July 20.

He said on the slim possibility the body might be that of a missing Jerome woman, he has contacted Jerome and Lincoln County officers with description information provided from Utah.

He said an autopsy in Moab, Utah, indicated the woman found there had been dead three or four months which would eliminate the possibility of the body being that of Nora Ann Cook, 41, Jerome.

Mrs. Cook disappeared July 7 and was last seen in a Shoshone tavern. The woman and the automobile she was driving have been missing since that time.

Sheriff Corder said he has been furnished the dental record of the body found in Utah, and this will be checked against local records. The body was that of a white female, age about 35 to 40, with short light brown hair, with some traces of gray, about 5'6" to 5'8" inches tall, with some traces of gray.

The nearly nude body had been wrapped in a sheet, blanket and then covered in large plastic garbage bags. The victim had been shot twice in the top of the head, officers said.

Minidoka parents want to aid in book selection

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Parents in Minidoka County want to be part of the selection process of textbooks and instructional and supplementary materials.

Well over 50 people showed up Monday night at the Minidoka County School District board of trustees meeting, enough to force moving the meeting from the Central office meeting room to East Minidoka Junior High School.

A 2-hour discussion followed on criteria and methods for selection of educational materials.

Mrs. Christine Kelley, English teacher at East Minidoka, presented the teachers' association proposal for selection and review of materials. The proposals were basically similar to current district policy but added some procedural points.

Parents generally voiced a need to have parental participation in the selection process itself, rather than only a complaint process after the book was already in the classroom.

Supt. Darrell Hatfield said the parental concern was heightened by complaints just before school was out last spring regarding two paperback books used in a literature class.

Parents voiced their concern about the effect on students of such subjects as violence, negative attitudes on society's values and sex.

The board said it would review the district policy in the light of teacher proposals and ideas brought forth by parents Monday night.

Dr. Hatfield urged the board to act swiftly. However, Dr. Harold Campbell, chairman of the board, asked board members to come to the next meeting with two laymen from their trustee zones to form a committee to revise present policy or develop a new one.

Teachers said they wanted to be represented on the committee too. Dr. Campbell said their request would be considered.

Later Dr. Hatfield said he believed teachers would get "at least equal representation."

"I'm sure there will be more patron participation in the selection not only of textbooks but of instructional material," Hatfield said after the meeting.

Changes in current policy proposed by the teachers were basically in the parent complaint process. They included a 10-day deadline for review of a complaint but expanded the policy to include instructional and supplementary materials, and included establishing an appeal process if the parent still was not satisfied.

Under the teacher proposal, parents could complain about a specific book in writing and ask that the materials be withheld from his child pending a decision by the committee to select or judge the material.

The review committee at the high school would include the librarian, principal, vice principal and department heads. At other schools it would include the librarian, principal and department head or teacher in the appropriate field.

Review would be within 10 days.

If there were an appeal, the committee would involve the superintendent, principal, three professional educators and five parents. The parents would be chosen jointly by the PTA and the Teachers and Parents for Children, one from each trustee zone. The curriculum director would serve as chairman.

Parents, however, were more concerned with original selection of materials.

Vai Harrison, math and music teacher at East Minidoka, also spoke against one facet of the teacher proposal. He pointed out the studies of the effects of TV violence on youngsters and likened it to the effect of teachers and study materials. He called for specific testing measure in the selection process with research to get an accurate testing program.

The teacher called for library books that stimulate growth with ethical standards, provide a background of information, offer opposing sides of controversial matters and are representative of all religious, ethnic and cultural groups.

It would place ultimate responsibility on the school board, delegating that authority to administrators in terms of the philosophy and objectives of the school system.

Teachers would recommend library materials in their fields appropriate to the needs and abilities of their students. Teacher request would be given strong consideration. Parent requests also would be welcomed.

Criteria would be a well-balanced content, sound literary quality and presentation of authorities on all points of view.

Careful scrutiny would see that religious books were factual and unbiased and ideologies were covered if they were a strong force in such fields as government, current events and politics.

Sex would receive a stern test of literary value and reality, but sex incidents would not disqualify a book meeting those standards. Scientific views would be available without bias.

Parents felt some supplemental materials, particularly in literature, were not as positive in their attitudes as they should be.

They asked other questions, including what criteria will be developed, who picks the authorities representing varied views, who will decide the literary value.

Those questions remain to be answered by a committee and eventually by the district's trustees.

markets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened lower Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was off 141 to 807.18 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 259 to 77, among the 472 issues crossing the tape.

Tuesday's setback was triggered, in part, when Sidney H. Jones, assistant Treasury Secretary, warned that although the economic recovery is under way, the next few weeks would be a turbulent period.

For weeks analysts have been debating the nature of the recovery, and Jones' statement confirmed some of their worst fears. Indians has become a major problem, along with rising interest rates. Jones and others felt these factors could cripple the recovery.

Just as the market opened, the Commerce Department reported personal income fell 1 percent in July because of Social Security benefit changes.

Seeding effects undesirable

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — A University of Wyoming scientist said today that cloud seeding to increase snowfall in mountain areas could create undesirable long term effects but they would be very slow coming.

"We have no ecological basis at present for recommending a halt to cloud seeding experiments, but important questions remain to be answered before cloud seeding can be accepted as a standard procedure," said Dennis H. Knight, professor of botany.

Knight was project coordinator for a recently completed 398-page study started in 1971 on a proposal of the Bureau of Reclamation to use silver iodide cloud seeding to increase snowfall in the Snowy Range west of Laramie. The bureau hoped it would increase irrigation water in the region.

Frost expected in high valleys

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area:
Fair and cool tonight. Lows 45 to 50. Sunny and warmer Thursday with highs 80 to 85. Light winds—tonight. The probability of precipitation is less than 10 per cent through Thursday.

Hailey, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley:
Fair and cool tonight, with scattered frost likely. Lows 27 to 32. Sunny and warmer Thursday; with highs 75 to 80. Light winds tonight. The probability of precipitation is less than 10 per cent through Thursday.

Synopsis:
The disturbance which was over Southern Idaho the past two or three days produced one to one and a half inches of rainfall near the Salmon River, one-third to one-half inch in the Boise valley, but mostly less than one-tenth of an inch in the Magic Valley.

It has moved to the east of us and generally fair weather is expected for the remainder of the week.

Increasing sunshine will push daytime temperatures into the 80s and possibly the lower 90s by the end of the week. The nights will be cool, especially tonight, but no frost is expected in the Magic Valley.

Camas Prairie, the upper Wood River Valley, Stanley Basin and similar high valleys can expect frost and freezing temperatures the next two nights.

The late summer harvest and haying should make good progress for the remainder of the week.

Pre-fair entertainment slated at Filer

TWIN FALLS — An innovation of this year's Twin Falls County Fair will be entertainment Monday and Tuesday before the fair starts, according to Ben Moltzen of the fair board.

Moltzen told people attending the publicity banquet Monday evening in the Rogers Round-Up Room that pre-fair entertainment has proved to be successful at many other fairs and the board decided to try it here.

B. J. Coulson, TV and recording star, will be featured entertainer. After she leaves Idaho, Miss Coulson will be shooting a film "Making of a Star" in Los Angeles this fall, and plans are in the making for her own show.

Raymond Johnson, Kimberly board president, said Sheriff Paul Corder and the board have coordinated plans for good security precautions during the days of the fair. Gray said, "We have never had any trouble during the fair and we don't anticipate any so we are prepared to prevent it."

Cecil Childs, superintendent of the produce department, said $10,000 of improvements have gone into the produce building this summer, including new ceiling and air vents and paneling on the walls.

The contribution the 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America make to the fair was praised by board members who said there are 71 4-H clubs in the area with approximately 800 members and 99 adult leaders, with members working on 45 different projects.

Mrs. Rex Reed recalled how the first horse show of the Filer Wranglers presented 15 years ago, was nearly rained out but not one contestant scratched out, and the rodeo that night was one of the "best ever" according to spectators. The club will again sponsor a free horse show the final day of the fair.

Miss Rodeo, Idaho queen contestants this year will be asked to give a prepared talk on "Our Great State of Idaho" along with participating in riding events and personality judging, according to Gene Hull, chairman of the queen contest.

The "Big Western" Register of Merit qualifying show this year is set for Sept. 5. It is sponsored by the Idaho Hereford Association, American Hereford Association, and Twin Falls County Fair board.

The Twin Falls County Fair has the second largest purebred breeders show in the United States, said Shouse, who added a Register of Merit show is already planned for 1976.

Beef department at fair expands

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer

FILER — The beef department of the Twin Falls County Fair has become so extensive that different shows for different breeds of cattle are held each day of the fair.

Angus, Charolais and Shorthorn Day will be observed Sept. 3, first day of the fair; the Polled Hereford and exotic breeds as well as the Junior Hereford Day and "Open to the World" Steer Show are scheduled for Sept. 4, and the Hereford Day — Register of Merit Qualifying Show is set for Sept. 5.

F. V. Morrison, Murtaugh, and John Nelson, Kimberly, are superintendents of the large beef department. Bob Waggoner, Jay Em, Wyo., and George Strathearn, Burlingame, Calif., are judges.

The five classes of beef eligible for premiums and awards include Aberdeen Angus, Herefords, Shorthorns, Charolais and Polled Herefords. New this year will be a class for exotic breeds. Judging and premiums will be determined as to the number of animals entered.

Aberdeen Angus entries will close at 5 p.m., Aug. 23 and judging is set for 8:05 a.m. Sept. 3. Premiums in 13 places will be offered in 13 classes and rosettes and purple ribbons for grand champions and reserve grand champions.

The Junior Angus Show is sponsored by American Angus Association and the Magic Valley Angus Breeders who will offer premiums as well as the Idaho Angus Auxiliary.

Shorthorn judging is scheduled for 5 p.m. Sept. 3 with large class of premiums in three places and rosettes and purple ribbons for grand champions and reserve champions.

The Junior show will feature fitting and showing and any animal with shorthorn blood, either steer or breeding animal, may be entered for competition.

Charolais Day also is Sept. 3 with entries closing at 6 p.m., Aug. 23.

A total of 30 classes have premiums to four places with rosettes and purple ribbons to grand champion and reserve champion winners.

The Junior Charolais Show is sponsored by the South Central Idaho Charolais Breeders and animals entered in this show must be seven-eighths and up to purebred. Any animal with Charolais blood, either steer or breeding animal, may compete in the fitting and showing class.

Record expected in Gem dry beans

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's commercial dry bean production may hit a record high this year, the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

If the forecast of 2.69 million hundredweight is realized, the service said, it would be "the highest production of record."

Acres for harvest — 138,000 — are 8,000 acres more than last year and the largest since 1954. Yield is forecast at 1.95 pounds above last year but 190 pounds below the high yielding 1972 crop.

Although starting later than usual, this spring, planting progressed rapidly and was completed earlier than normal, the service said. Weather conditions during July favored plant development while insects and disease damage to date have been minimal.

Meantime, the service reported reductions in Idaho's hop, mint and dry pea production.

Hop production is forecast at 6.21 million pounds, down 11 per cent from last year; dry peas are expected to be 849,000 hundredweight, down 36 per cent, and mint growers are expected to harvest 257,000 pounds of peppermint oil, or 19 per cent below last year.

Weather was blamed by the service for the decline in production of the three crops.

Donohue dies

GRAZ, Austria (UPI) — Race car driver Mark Donohue died at about 7 p.m. tonight of complications that arose Sunday following an operation to remove a blood clot from his brain. Donohue suffered head injuries in an accident Sunday during a practice run for the Austrian Grand Prix.

Colts swap with Packers

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts Tuesday traded rookie defensive tackle Paul Pfundorf of Brigham Young to the Green Bay Packers for an undisclosed draft choice. The Colts also released center Mike Smith of SMU, running back Mario Cage of Northwestern Louisiana State, defensive tackle Mike Ewald of Macalester College, and cornerback second-year man Tim Rudnick of Notre Dame. The cuts brings the Colts' roster to 50 players.

Sontes sign Seals

SEATTLE (UPI) — Bruce Seals, 22, signed with the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association Tuesday and Coach Bill Russell said his team was "pretty solid at forward." The 6-foot-8, 215-pound former star at Xavier of New Orleans was Seattle's second-round choice in the college draft last spring. Seals jumped from the rival American Basketball Association after spending two unhappy years with the Utah Stars. "This makes us pretty solid at forward," said Russell, who also is general manager of the SuperSonics. "Seals is a good passer, good shooter, good defensive player and he can put the ball on the floor."

Pitcher ties record

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie southpaw Jim Umberger of the Texas Rangers Tuesday night became only the 14th pitcher in American League history to complete an unassisted double play. With the bases loaded in the second inning, Cleveland's Alan Ashby attempted a squeeze bunt and popped it up to Umberger, who caught the ball and raced all the way to third to double-up Rico Carty. The first unassisted double play by an AL pitcher came on Aug. 7, 1972, when Jim Perry accomplished the feat for the Minnesota Twins.

Page in fine fettle

MANKATO, Minn. (UPI) — Defensive tackle Alan Page spent his first day in the Minnesota Vikings training camp Tuesday and was pronounced in excellent shape. Page has been in law school in Texas and missed the Vikings' first two preseason games. Coach Bud Grant said linebacker Wally Hilgenberg missed practice Tuesday because of a charley horse and safety Terry Brown was out with minor ankle and knee bruises, described by Grant as artificial turf bruises.

McAuliffe joins Red Sox

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox Tuesday placed third baseman Rico Petrocelli on the 15-day disabled list and filled his place on the roster with infielder Dick McAuliffe, a veteran of several tight pennant races during his 13-year career with the Detroit Tigers. McAuliffe, 35, played with the Red Sox for 100 games last season and announced his retirement at the end of the campaign. He was removed from the Red Sox' 40-man roster and accepted a managerial position with the Boston's Double-A affiliate at Bristol.

Record attempt fails

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — New Zealand's John Walker, who ran the first sub-3:50 mile last week, failed Tuesday night in his bid to set a new record in the 1,500 meters but won the event without much trouble at the annual Swedish track and field games. Walker won the 1,500 meters in 3:35.7, finishing ahead of West Germany's Thomas Wessinghage and Heinz Paul Wellmann, but fell short of the world record of 3:32.2 set by Tanzania's Filbert Bayi at the British Commonwealth Games in Jamaica earlier this year.

WFL honors Reamon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tommy Reamon, the tri-most valuable player of the World Football League last season, was named WFL player of the week for his two touchdown-124 yard rushing performance last Saturday against the Birmingham Vulcans. Reamon scored the go-ahead and insurance touchdowns in the 22-11 victory by his Jacksonville Express over the previously unbeaten Vulcans.

Aaron uncommitted about next year

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Home run king Henry Aaron Tuesday said he has not made up his mind on whether he will end his playing days after this season or come back for another year with the Milwaukee Brewers. Aaron's comments Monday night in a radio interview with California Angel broadcaster Dick Enberg seemed to indicate he planned to retire. "I know I'm not a 20-hitter or a guy who only hits 11 homers a year," he told Enberg. "I've already reached a decision on my future. I don't want to embarrass myself. I should get out." But Tuesday, in a telephone interview with Milwaukee Sentinel sportswriter Lou Chappman, Aaron appeared to change his tune. "That's the interview I remember that I want retirement," Aaron said. "But I haven't announced which way I'll go. There are other people involved." Aaron said he will have to talk with Brewers President Bud Selig and others. "I have no further comment beyond what has already been said," Aaron said. He has said in the past he has made up his mind but isn't going to reveal his plans until the end of the season. Aaron is hitting only .231 and has 11 homers and has driven in 46 runs. "I feel I have contributed something to the club in more ways than one," he said. Selig agrees, saying, "He has been of tremendous help to us on and off the field. He has contributed in other areas besides attendance. Only one of them is as an example to our players. This man has made a lot of contributions. It shouldn't all be evaluated around his .231 batting average."

New NCAA rules may save Big Sky schools $90,000

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Big Sky Conference Chairman John O. Roning Tuesday said a potential annual saving of $90,000 could be realized by league schools under new rules adopted last week at a special NCAA budget conference. He emphasized, however, that cost-cutting measures should not affect the quality or competitiveness of Big Sky member schools. "The real problem among college sports today is finances," he said. "Revenues are just not keeping up with expenses for schools our size." Roning said the measures adopted by the NCAA are designed to aid schools in keeping athletic programs competitive while reducing the costs. "They will help to insure the continuing success of these teams."

Roning said rules changes effect size of basketball travel squads, team sizes of both basketball and football, the number of players allowed to dress for the two sports, elimination of course-related expenses and incidental expenses fees for scholarship recipients, and cutbacks of nonfootball and basketball sports. He said elimination of course related supplies and of incidental expenses reimbursement for those on athletic scholarships, could total a minimum savings of $12,000 for the eight member schools. Cutbacks in the number of basketball team members from 18 to 15 and the number of players on the travel squad from 12 to 10 could mean a saving of about $10,000 a year for each league team. Additionally, Roning said, the number of football players dressed for a game is now limited by the NCAA to 60, which will reduce the costs of equipment. Non-football and basketball sports have been reduced by 33 percent for Division I schools. Big Sky members compete in Division I in every sport but football. Roning said another cost reducing resolution now limits the number of football coaches to eight, but that will not affect Big Sky teams.

Bill Virdon replaces Gomez as manager of Houston's Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Astros, skidding toward the worst season in their 13 years, Tuesday fired Preston Gomez and named ousted New York Yankee manager Bill Virdon to take immediate control of the team. Virdon had just come off his third fishing trip in 17 days since he left the Yankee job when New Astros general manager Tal Smith called him Monday. "I said, 'Let's go,'" Virdon told newsmen at a news conference at the Astrodome. "I had always wanted a shot at Houston."

two season before going to the Yankees to coach the seventh Astros manager. He was given a contract through 1976. "I went to Pittsburgh and I was expected to win," said Virdon. "I went with the Yankees and I was expected to win. The only difference here is I know we can't win — this year."

Houston became the first team in the major leagues to be eliminated from title contention Monday. For the remaining 31 games, Virdon said he will evaluate the talent and help the Astros play spoiler. "They've already been doing that pretty regularly," he said. "Beating Pittsburgh four straight, I noticed that."

Soviets down U.S. eagles

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — The Soviet Union, powered by a 27-point performance from Sergei Belov, defeated the United States 71-65 Tuesday night to win the Intercontinental Cup basketball series. The Americans, led by Robert Parrish of Centenary, dominated the first half, holding a 29-28 advantage at intermission, but the Russians turned the tables in the second half, scoring the first bucket after the half began for a lead they never gave up. The contest was the final event in the series and the Soviet victory left the Russians atop the standings with a 7-1 record. Brazil finished second at 6-2 and the Americans wound up with a 3-4 record. The United States led by as many as 12 points in the first half, at 31-19 with 5:45 remaining until halftime. But the Soviets scored seven straight points to cut the margin to 31-26 and whittled that down to one point by intermission.

Gooding council eyes sewage problem

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding city councilmen say they believe in growth but they won't annex any more land until the city's sewage problem is solved.

They say the problem is infiltration of irrigation water into the sewer system.

According to Lloyd McLeod, sewer and water supervisor, the sewage water nearly doubles the volume entering the treatment plant, bringing it to near capacity operation under current standards. He said under new Environmental Protection Agency regulations scheduled to go into effect the first of the year the plant will probably be considered overloaded.

Dick Strickland, Gooding developer, Monday night asked the council to annex 4.7 acres adjacent to the city along 14th Avenue West. He plans to build 23 units on the land now owned by Dr. C.J. Stapp.

Mayor Gene Kelly told Strickland the council wants the city to grow but there is no money to solve the sewage problem immediately.

"What are you going to do," Strickland asked. "Just sit here and stagnate or do something about the problem?"

Councilmen assured him they were dealing with the problem, but it would cost $51,000 just for a survey to determine where the sewage water was entering the system. A new sewage system would probably require a bond issue, but it was generally agreed during the discussion that the sewage system itself was adequate if the infiltration of irrigation water could be solved.

Both Strickland and Jim Wilkins, who appeared toward

School opening set

RUPERT — Minidoka County students will begin school Sept. 2. West Minidoka Junior High will get the jump in registration as the ninth graders register Monday. Eighth graders are to register Tuesday and the seventh graders on Wednesday, Aug. 27.

East Minidoka Junior High will register new students on Tuesday, Aug. 26, and returning students will be registered Wednesday.

Juniors and seniors are to report Tuesday, Aug. 26, at Minico High School. Seniors will be registered at 8 a.m. and juniors at 10:30 a.m. after briefing on "open court" registration for self scheduling of classes.

Sophomores are to report at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Registration at other schools in the county will also take place Wednesday.

Faculty meetings and in-service training sessions will be held for teachers Thursday and Friday, Aug. 28 and 29, with school beginning the following Tuesday.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUG. 21, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES Today's Full Moon should give you plenty of action in relation to arrangements you would like to make with good friends. Your creative ideas should be used to advantage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get together with congenial, you-like and make good time during spare hours. Put talents to work and get fine results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look about your home and endeavor to improve the situation there and increase harmony. Do some entertaining tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A conference with associates shows how best to proceed in the future and have more accord. Strive for more happiness.

MOON (CHILDREN June 22 to July 21) Elevate your thinking where money is concerned and be able to command more prosperity. Be wary of strangers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) Use that smile and charm others. Engage in more social activities as soon as business matters are handled properly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Gain the advice of experts so that you can advance more quickly in the near future. Be at your charming best tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look to that influential yet charming person who can assist you in your career. Much good can come of this in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Become very active in civic matters and get excellent results. Obtain the assistance you need from a higher-up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are highly inspired and can easily gain your fondest aspirations today. Arrange for a trip you want to take.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use the hunches where your mate is concerned and you come out a winner. A good time to make plans for the future.

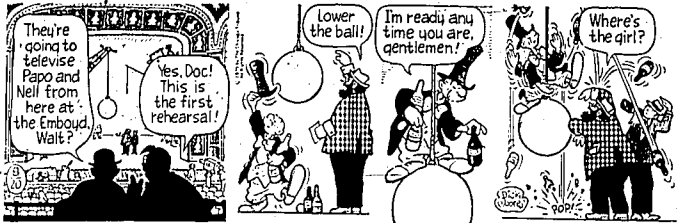

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Meet with associates and make better arrangements for the future. Take health treatments that will perk you up.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make your environs more comfortable. Come to a better understanding with co-workers early in the day. Be logical.

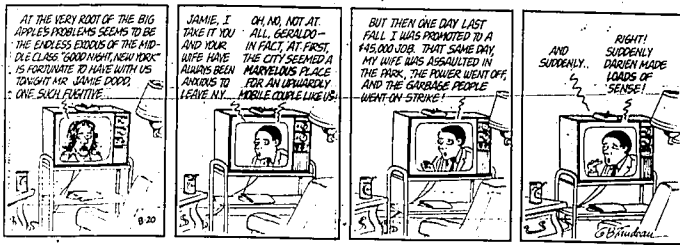

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — He or she will be one of those persons who are the most successful — the highest results of any undertaking will be his or hers. He or she has potential, plus understanding the needs of others. Be sure to equip your progeny with the finest education.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you.

A doctor of renown contends that the woman who describes her husband as "the most wonderful man in the world" probably needs psychiatric treatment. He is not just being sardonic. He says that, wifely comment is a serious tipoff to emotional sickness. Our Love and War man is looking for another doctor of renown.

AN ANNUAL REPORT of the New York City's Association noted: "Whether men make passes at girls who wear glasses depends a lot on their frames."

CREMATION reduces the weight of a 200-pound man to about nine pounds.

HORSES
Q. "In horses, what's the difference between a pacer and a trotter?"
A. A pacer's legs on one side of its body move in the same direction at the same time. A trotter's legs diagonally opposite each other move in the same direction at the same time.

THE GREAT TRIAL lawyer Clarence Darrow smoked cigars. In courtrooms, too, where allowed. He frequently lit up shortly before the prosecution started its argument. Invariably, then, he sat motionless while the cigar ash grew longer and longer. A reporter, who observed this little trick repeatedly, finally realized that the attention of the jurors always seemed to shift from the prosecution talk to that lengthy cigar ash as they waited for it to drop. Notion even arose that Darrow ran a wire through his cigar to hold the ash in place. Who knows?

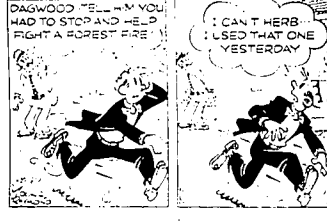

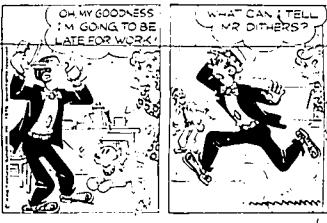

WHALES
Whales, too, go south for the winter. In fact, you can see them migrating off Point Loma near San Diego some time between December 15 and March 15, usually.

WITH THE BICENTENNIAL in mind, perhaps it would do to point out that the record reveals the baptismal name of an early colonial baby girl was "Through Much Tribulation We Enter The Kingdom Of Heaven." Her nickname was "Tribby."

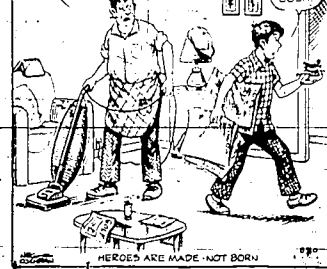

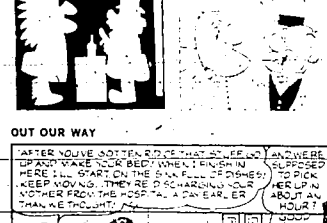

A LOT OF hungry French soldiers were left behind in Russia after Napoleon's invading army came unglued in 1812. When those stragglers begged for food, they always started out with the French phrase "cher ami" meaning "dear friend." Today, the Russian word "sherny" means "tramp."

MARVIN Norris, Hansen, and Marla Peterson, Muraugh, are shown with Norris's GMC four-wheel drive at the Bonackers Four Wheel Drive Club picnic Friday at Mt. Soo-Pah. Like many other club members, Norris has a "ce" band radio, which proves helpful on mountain trails.

30 states, SSA in welfare fuss

WASHINGTON — Thirty states are withholding a total of $306 million from the Social Security Administration in a dispute over the nation's new adult welfare program.

According to interviews with more than 20 state welfare directors, most of them are withholding payments because they believe Social Security chronically overpays people enrolled in the program, called Supplemental Security Income (SSI). Social Security has countered by saying that if the states do not pay the money the agency will attempt to have federal funds withdrawn from other state programs.

The dispute and the overpayment — calculated so far to be $403,748,830.74 — are causing massive friction between the layers of the nation's three-tiered welfare system: county-state-federal created by SSI when it began in Jan. 1, 1974.

Idaho, however, is not involved in the dispute, according to Jerry Quick, Idaho Department of Health and Welfare chief of medical and financial assistance programs. He told the Times-News that Idaho fortunately has not encountered the same problems as other states since it did not enter into any contracts with the Social Security administration to administer its supplement.

According to the Washington Star, some people, the pawns in this shuffle, are falling between the cracks:

"An elderly woman in California has spent months shuttling back and forth between state offices, county welfare offices and federal Social Security offices trying to solve a problem that began when somebody punched the wrong Social Security number into the computer.

Every month, for 15 months, she had to report to her Social Security office that her supplemental security income (SSI) check had not arrived and then wait three weeks for the paper check necessary for a handwritten check. But that wasn't all. California is one of several states that have tied eligibility for Medicaid to eligibility to receive SSI.

To get her Medicaid card the woman had to go to her Social Security office in an adjoining county to get a verification of her eligibility, take it back to her county welfare office and then go to a second, more distant county office to get a hand-issued Medicaid card.

Since Social Security, which operates SSI, couldn't solve her problem, the state of California did what it could. "Somebody gave her bus fare. She couldn't drive so she was trying to take the bus all over the place," explained Jay Eisen, counsel to a special committee of the California Legislature which has been investigating SSI problems.

A disabled man in Gulfport, Miss., who found a bonanza in mailboxes. He looked there last November and found a gold SSI check for $647. Four weeks later he looked in again and found another gold check, this one for $1,191.83. A week later, there was another one for $227.80. A few days more and another check for $416.19.

"Dave Tealer, counselor and attendance officer at Filer Elementary, and Gordon Larson, high school attendance officer, are. Quis Hardin will teach two classes of arts and crafts, one hour at the high school and one hour at Filer Elementary each day.

Mrs. Theo Brown is secretary in the high school principal's office. Mrs. Clarence Heaps, Filer Elementary, School secretary. Donna Pierce is high school aide; Judy Allen will be in charge of the Filer Elementary school library. Mrs. Shirley Cobb, High School Librarian.

Mrs. Ray Baker is secretary in the superintendent's office and also clerk of the school board. Ruth Mills is secretary at Hollister Elementary.

The Filer schools have adopted a school management team to let trustees become more involved with school activities, areas and assignments as follows: Lawrence Knigge, school board policy and janitorial coordinator; Dave Chadwick, Hollister school, high school and extra curricular; Leo Gihring, school budget; Everett Andrews, faculty and board, and school lunch; Lyn Ochsner; school bus and elementary school.

Willard put in reserve

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI) — Veteran running back Ken Willard was placed on the reserve-injured list Tuesday by the St. Louis football Cardinals.

Willard, acquired in a trade deal last year with the San Francisco 49ers, suffered a knee injury in the fourth game of last season. He returned for the final three games following surgery. However, the club said his knee has not improved sufficiently in the offseason.

Willard ranks eighth among all-time National Football League rushers with 6,105 yards over a 10-year career. He ranks second only to Buffalo's O.J. Simpson among active ballcarriers.

2 women compete for Jerome queen

JEROME — Only two young women will compete this week for the queen's crown at the 1975 Jerome County Fair and Rodeo.

The new queen will be crowned by last year's winner, Sherri Muir, during the final night of rodeo activities Thursday.

The two candidates along with the five junior princess contestants and their families were guests at a picnic at Jerry James' home. James, who is also in charge of the queen contest, said the contestants were judged on personality and appearance at the picnic and on horsemanship Sunday night.

James said the queen candidates will participate in a special goat tying event Wednesday night.

Queen contestants and their sponsors are Cindy Scheer, Jerome, Jerome County Sheriff's posse, and Robin Jewett, Gooding, Volco Inc.

Miss Scheer, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Scheer. She was the first runner-up in the queen contest last year. Miss Scheer is a 1975 graduate of Jerome High School and is working at St. Benedict's Hospital. She plans to attend the College of Southern Idaho this fall and work towards a career as a registered nurse.

Miss Scheer was very active in the high school rodeo club and pep club during her high school years. She was chosen the 1975 homecoming queen in 1975.

Miss Jewett, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harland Jewett. She is also a 1975 Gooding High School graduate and plans to attend Link's Business College in Boise this fall.

Miss Jewett was active in the high school rodeo club, was sent to state twice and twice was fifth alternate to nationals. She is also active in 4-H, Future Homemakers of America, barrel racing, cow cutting and goat tying.

The junior princess and their sponsors are Wendy Churchman, Lions Club; Janice Nelson, Rotary; Jeanie Bremers, Jerome Chamber of Commerce; Lorrie Black, Ida Gem Dairyman, and Cathie Cummins, Simplot.

Miss Churchman is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Churchman. She is a junior at Jerome High School.

Miss Nelson, 15, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nelson. She has won numerous awards, including high point winner at the Idaho Appaloosa Horse competition in Afton, Wyo.

Miss Black, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black. She has competed in several horse shows and won all-around in the 15-to-17 age group at the recent Maple Valley Appaloosa Horse show.

Miss Bremers, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.E. Bremers. She has been active in the Little Britches Rodeo and was fourth in district and state goat tying competition.

Miss Cummins, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cummins. She has been in 4-H for the past eight years.
